PRESIDENTIAL THANK-YOU COMING

Ex-Marine Hero Mum On 'Gay' Status

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Ex-Marine Oliver Sipple saw the gun pulled out of the purse and pointed at the President. He knocked it away.

Now, he says his mother tells him she is afraid to even step out of her house because all the neighbors are talking about published reports that her son is a homosexual. "This is his reward for saving the President's life," said lawyer John Wahl, who has represented gay groups in court.

"We are very seriously considering action against news media which have carried the stories which destroyed 32 years of family life enjoyed with his mother and father and other personal relationships with friends," Wahl said.

Sipple appeared at a news conference Thursday with Wahl and with the Rev. John Barbone, pastor of a gay church. He told reporters that he had spoken with his mother in Detroit and the conversation had ended with her hanging up on him. However, in Detroit, Ethel Sipple told newsmen, "I'm a very fortunate mother to have a son like Oliver. We're all very proud of him."

Mrs. Sipple, 66, said she spoke to her son for an hour on the phone Wednesday. "When he was fighting in Vietnam, there were many times when I thought he would never return alive," Mrs. Sipple said of her son. "But he came back and probably saved the life of the President of the United States."

Sipple's personal life became an object of attention after a local columnist, Herb Caen, wrote a column strongly implying the Vietnam veteran was gay and noting that he had not yet been thanked by the White House. Ron Nessen, White House Press Secretary, said Thursday that the President intended to thank everyone who helped during the assassination attempt. Sipple said the news was "terrific."

"Hey, that's great. That's beautiful," he said. "I knew he'd come through. He's just been busy. Wow, it's incredible. You do something in a minute and the whole nation's looking at you." Several hours later, his eyes red and his voice shaking, he stood before the television cameras and read from a handwritten statement:

"My sexuality is part of my private life and has no bearing on my response to the act of a person seeking to take the life of another. My sexual orientation has nothing at all to do with saving the President's life, just as the color of my eyes or my race has nothing to do with what happened in front of the St. Francis Hotel."

Authorities credit the burly Sipple with knocking the arm of Sara Jane Moore, accused of firing a shot at the President as he emerged from the hotel Monday. The shot went wild and Ford was unhurt. "Why did I do it? It was a gun pointed at the President of the United States, that's why," he said a few hours after the incident.

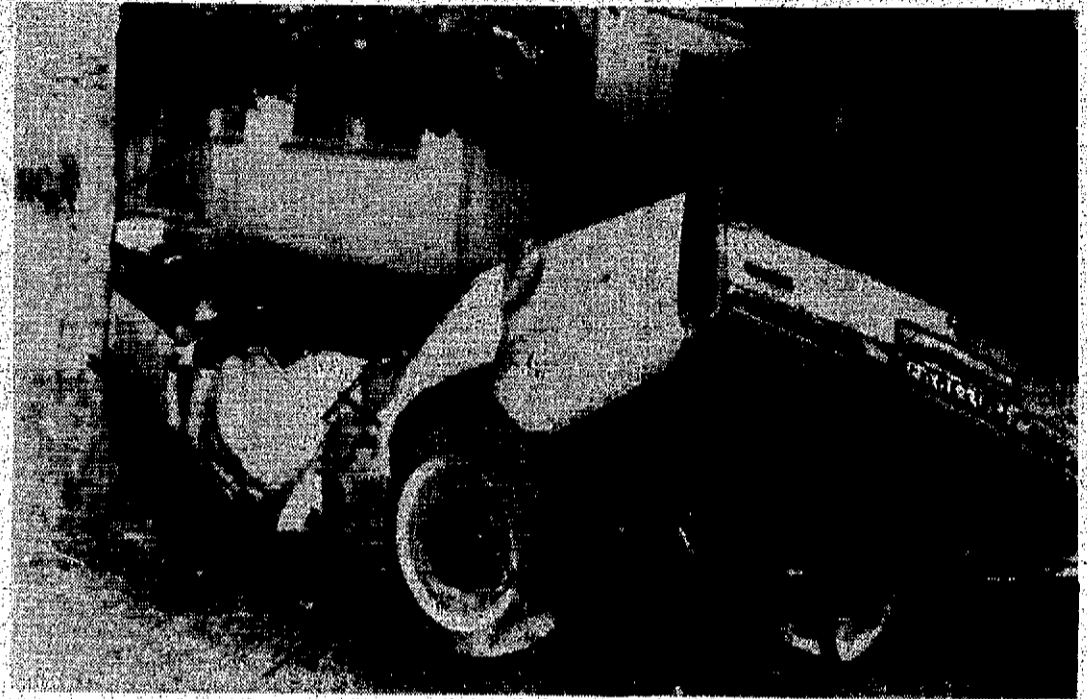

Leaders in the gay community were split between sympathy for a man they said was dragged into a harsh spotlight and anger at a man some said is hurting the gay rights movement with his reticence.

"What is he trying to hide?" said the Rev. Raymond Broshers. "He's active in the gay community, he's worked in gay bars. He can hardly pretend it isn't common knowledge."

Another gay leader, the Rev. Ronald T. Paniel, was more sympathetic. "I think that he has every right to state the fact that it's no one's business whether he's gay or not," he said. "If in fact he is homosexual it would be beneficial to the community if he would come forth and state such, but I cannot condemn him for not doing so."

Troopers 'Advertise' Adamant Line On Pay

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Readers of Michigan newspapers may soon be confronted by an advertisement showing a State Police officer with the caption: "No. 1 in prestige, No. 15 in wages, sinking in morale."

The ad would go on to compare a State Police detective's salary of $18,035 a year to the $23,000 salary of a comparable officer in Detroit — or similarly higher pay in other major cities.

The ad is slated as part of a campaign by the Michigan State Police Troopers Association to rally public support for higher pay for State Police officers. The State Police were ranked first in public respect in a state survey, and the association says they rank 73th in the state in wages.

The ad would urge support of a legislative resolution to permit collective bargaining for troopers — a move that would require amending the constitution by a vote of the people.

The association warns that unless pay is upgraded, law enforcement may suffer.

"There is a tragedy taking place which is slowly eroding the fabric of Michigan's finest law enforcement agency," said Association President Gerald Zielinski. "And we believe the citizens of Michigan deserve to know how bad the situation really is."

"Morale is terrible because of the pay, and that affects other things," said Doll Brown, executive secretary of the MSPA, which represents 1,350 of the 1,850 police troopers. "They can't recruit good employees. I think we're sitting on a powder keg. If the Civil Service Commission doesn't give the guys some hope, there's going to be trouble," Brown said.

"I don't think there is any sentiment for a strike, but if the commission doesn't give them hope, you don't know what is going to happen."

The Civil Service Commission is beginning the procedure to determine pay levels for the state's 56,000 classified employees which will take effect next July 1.

The decision will be made in December. Last year the commission granted no raise at all, although it did permit a cost-of-living adjustment to be built into the pay schedule.

In past years, the commission has granted a percentage increase for all state workers. But Brown says that's not sufficient.

"It's a cop-out by the commission to give a flat percentage," he said. "Then they don't have to deal with problem areas and political decisions."

Brown says the troopers want a 22 per cent pay increase, or approval to engage in collective bargaining.

He said the advertisements will begin in the Lansing State Journal, in an effort to reach the legislature and state government in general. But they may be expanded to other papers, he said.

"The problem is that we've been trying to convince the Civil Service Commission that the State Police are falling tremendously behind local police," Brown said, "and the commission has not bought the argument."

"The appeal directly to the citizens is our last, temporary answer to a more militant position," Zielinski warned. "If employees don't get some relief soon, MSPA will have already lost control over individual employees."

Road Toll Hits 40 In Berrien County

By TOM SAWYER
Staff Writer

Berrien county's 1975 highway traffic death toll rose to 40 early today when a rural Watervliet man was killed when his 1975 Cadillac Eldorado slammed into a tree off Red Arrow highway.

Killed was Thomas A. Crossno, 46, route 1, Pleasant View Estates, Watervliet. Berrien sheriff's officers said he was traveling alone. The accident occurred between Kerkilowske and Roslin roads, at the Benton-Hagar township line about 2:35 a.m.

Crossno's death was the third this week in a Berrien county traffic accident. Last year at the same time, 22 people had been killed, and the highway death toll for all of 1974 was 34.

Officers said evidence indicated Crossno was eastbound on Red Arrow at a high rate of speed. They reported his car apparently veered from one side of the road to the other, slid sideways into a tree stump and became airborne. It hit a tree about 18 feet away on the driver's side.

Berrien sheriff's Lt. Dave Tiefenbach said Crossno's head had resided in the area three years, coming from St. Louis, Mo. He was employed by Whirlpool Corporation.

Surviving are his widow Marjorie; two daughters, Mrs. Edward (Patsy) Edmundston, Siles, Mo., and Terry at home; two sons, Dennis and Thomas, both at home; a sister Mrs. Raymond (Betty) Birmingham, Piggott, Ark.; his mother, Mrs. Mabel Williams Campbell, Mo., and his father, Alvin Crossno, Lula, Miss.

Mr. Crossno was a veteran of the Korean Conflict.

Friends may call at the Day-Florin funeral home this evening. The body will be taken to Bowling Green, Mo., for services and burial at a later date.

$500,000 Malpractice Award

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A Kent County Circuit Court jury has awarded a Grand Rapids couple $500,000 in a malpractice suit against a local surgeon. Judge George R. Cook said to his knowledge the malpractice award to George and Carole Westcott is the largest in Kent County history. The Westcotts sued Dr. Christopher H. Southwick claiming he improperly diagnosed Westcott's back problem. The suit claims a ruptured disc left Westcott permanently paralyzed after being treated only with a pain killing drug.

PROFESSIONAL PRESTIGE ITEM Michigan Called License-Happy

By SUSAN AGER
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state should license fewer occupations, because ego-conscious professionals are ballooning regulation out of control, a state official says.

"We've licensed so many occupations and professions that we're getting into 'prestige licensing,'" said Beverly Clark, head of the state Department of Licensing and Regulation.

"An occupation will look for a licensing act just to gain more prestige as its members can hang a certificate on their walls."

Mrs. Clark said Thursday she has recommended the state stop regulating and licensing horologists (watchmakers), landscape architects, foresters, community planners and sanitarians.

She said she made the recommendations to Gov. William Milliken, who passed them on to a special task force investigating licensing and regulation.

The licensing department might find after further study the other occupations do not need state policing, she said.

The state has more than 100 boards to oversee as many occupations. Mrs. Clark, interviewed after a public hearing on licensing, was unable to say exactly how many there are but estimated about 130 livelihoods fall under state control.

Testifying at the hearing, Joe Tuchinsky, executive director of the Public Interest Research Group in Michigan (PIRGIM), charged the department has made it nearly impossible for the public to obtain information.

He said a PIRGIM attorney spent 4½ hours hand-copying a public document because Mrs. Clark would not let him use a copy machine.

Mrs. Clark admitted this was true, but said: "No one ever asked to see that before."

She said regulatory boards should have drawn up procedures allowing public examination of records.

Rep. Gary Owen, chairman of a special House committee investigating the department, said he expects the governor's task force to recommend repeal of several licensing acts, specifically those covering horology, social workers, masseurs and masseuses.

The Ypsilanti Democrat said it would be "extremely difficult to scrap licensing regulations for any of the occupations under the department's jurisdiction because of strong opposition. Some professions want licensing to limit competition, he said.

Owen said his committee will ask 16 regulatory boards whether they are really needed and if they received any complaints last year.

Alternatives to licensing, Owen said, include easier access by consumers to small claims courts, class action suits and school certification of some professions.

Were it left to me to decide whether we should have government without newspapers or newspapers without government, I should not hesitate to prefer the latter. — Thomas Jefferson.

An Uncommon Woman With A Common Touch

The death in an auto crash Wednesday of Margaret Beckley-Upton would have been newsworthy simply because she was the wife of Frederick S. Upton, retired senior vice president of Whirlpool corporation and one of the Twin Cities' most widely respected philanthropists. But the tragic accident merited even more attention because in 80 years of living here Margaret Upton carved her own niche of great accomplishment and deep affection.

She was an uncommon woman with a common touch.

A devotee of classic art, music and literature, she was also a woman who could walk into a roomful of strangers and, with a smile, make everyone feel at home.

She reared four children and doted on her 16 grandchildren. She also loved everyone's else children and inspired a veritable legion of projects and contributions to youngsters less fortunate than her own.

Just one acknowledgement of her work was a special award in 1970 from the Michigan Easter Seal Society "for outstanding and devoted service to the cause of crippled children and adults."

Aspiring young musicians receive Margaret Upton scholarships from the local Monday Musical club, in which she was a leader and worker for a period of time that bridged generations.

These and the beautiful Margaret

Upton Conservatory of Music at Olivet College, a gift from her husband dedicated last year, will be enduring tributes.

The impact of her efforts will also be felt for years to come in her leadership in her First Congregational Church of St. Joseph, in organizations like the Algonquin chapter of D.A.R., the Antiquarian Society and the Fort Miami Heritage Society.

But certainly the most vivid tributes to her memory will be in the minds and hearts of her family and friends as long as their ranks shall survive.

Possibly the magic of Margaret Upton's personality first made itself felt when she was the star and leader of the girls basketball team at Benton Harbor high school. She never became too sophisticated to lose the happy, friendly enthusiasm of those girlhood days. And from them, she retained the ability to lead without forcing.

"She'll be talking the angels into good works about now," a relative said with a tearful smile shortly after her death.

Perhaps the most striking memory of Margaret Upton will picture her arm in arm with her husband Fred, the ideal couple who after 58 years always appeared as much in love as newlyweds.

The tragedy of Margaret Upton's accidental death is diminished by the fact that Providence vouchsafes to few people the years together, and the ability, to do so much for others.

They're Satisfied With The 25th Amendment

Despite the misgivings and forebodings which were heard following the resignation of Richard M. Nixon from the presidency, and the elevation of the nation's first non-elected vice president to the highest office, the 25th Amendment to the U.S. Constitution did its job and did it well.

That is the conclusion of the Senate Judiciary Committee's subcommittee on constitutional amendments. With more than a year of hindsight to guide it, the panel has found no reason to tamper with the 25th Amendment's method of filling the two highest offices in the land.

"The amendment permitted an orderly transition and the American people readily accepted President Ford as a legitimate occupant of the presidency," the subcommittee reported. "From a practical viewpoint," it added, "therefore, the amendment worked exceptionally well."

Noting that the previous method of succession to the presidency involved moving the Speaker of the House into next in line, if a vacancy existed in the vice presidency, the panel concluded it was preferable that the 25th Amendment helped insure "that the popular mandate from the previous election will be continued throughout the regular four-year term."

Purloined Penny Caper New Washington Scandal

For lack of a horseshoe nail, a battle was lost. The consequences for the U.S. Mint are not so serious, but because 13 experimental aluminum pennies cannot be located, it is considering producing 100 million more of the coins.

In what has become known as the "case of the purloined pennies," Mint officials acknowledge that of 17 of the experimental coins produced, only four have been located. The embarrassing part of the story is that the coins were loaned to officials of the Treasury Dept. and members of Congress who were considering plans to switch from copper to aluminum cents.

This was two years ago, when copper shortages had developed and copper prices were soaring on world markets. The Director of the Mint had the aluminum coins produced specially to show appropriate officials why switching from copper might be a good idea.

The aluminum penny bill never passed and copper prices since have subsided. Now all the Mint wants is to recover its sample coins, which would be worth as much as $35,000 each to collectors. The alternative might be to produce millions more of the coins to render the originals worthless as collector items.

Most Americans know better than to trust a Congressman. But what about the Treasury department officials who got the aluminum pennies? At least they ought to be honest enough to return them.

Shouldn't they?

UNRUH'S VIEW GETS LOT OF SUPPORT

Editor:

Last week, the Coloma Police Chief, Mr. Ken Unruh, spoke out and voiced his opinion of the present judicial system in Berrien County regarding juvenile offenders in our streets. Three cheers for Ken Unruh! Evidently, you are all we have to protect our rights! When will we be able to walk our streets without being harassed and insulted — to park our cars along the streets without coming back to them and finding them scratched and dented — to have the decent young people of Coloma able to walk down the sidewalk without being jumped by dope-crazed hoodlums who take out their hang-ups on respectable citizens? Can we continue to ignore these deplorable conditions?

Adults are not allowed to act this way. They are arrested for "disturbing the peace" or being "disorderly persons." If a runaway's parents are not responsible for the damage that occurs, who is then? If our law enforcement officers are to be scoffed at for their efforts and the courts and juvenile authorities will do nothing and allows them to loiter in the streets, then where does the law abiding citizen turn? Do we have to resort to carrying weapons to defend ourselves to keep from getting mugged and ripped-off as people did in the days of the "Wild West"? What then is the purpose of our taxes paying for the salaries of Juvenile Courts that take a "do nothing until someone gets killed" attitude? Are there two sets of rules to follow — one for adults, and one for minors?

We have a large majority of real good kids in our city. Is it the desire of the Probate Court to use this lawlessness as an example of how they should live? Do we want these sort of people to govern our county in years to come?

When do the courts recognize the rights of the adult population? When someone gets killed? When a 15-year-old runaway bites you, when do you bite back? Do you wait until she is over 18 and stabs you instead?

Stay in there and keep pitching for us Ken Unruh, you're all we have! Citizens of Coloma City and Township Mr. and Mrs. Edward Yeske Mr. and Mrs. Fred C. A spectacle of musical culture will ring out in the Twin Cities tomorrow night from the fingers of the world's best known pianist. The Twin Cities Symphony Society, Inc., presents Van Cliburn in an 8:15 concert at St. Joseph high school. Cliburn is the most noted performer ever booked by the society which is dedicated to providing high quality music to the community.

The gatherings are not as large as they were four years ago, but they are gradually growing in size.

The Rahn shoe store in St. Joseph has moved from its former location on Ship street to the old Zekind stand, 212 State street.

The fire engine in St. Joseph, which has been repairing for several weeks, will be ready for use again in two or three days.

The Benton Harbor college football team is already springing into fame. Half a score of colleges in the surrounding states have requested games for October and November. The best players will be selected for the game with Notre Dame University October 6.

'Big Mama' Sure She Knows Best

WASHINGTON — (NEA) — There is a persistent story that several decades ago the Louisiana legislature tried to enact a law setting the official value of pi at a neatly rounded 3, thereby ridding the populace of the burden of that damned decimal point.

True or not, the story shouldn't be surprising. In her haste to rescue people even when it's unnecessary, government, "Big Mama," is disappointingly prone to rush in where angels fear to tread.

A current example of this, chosen from a list that threads through the congressional cosmos, is the federal insistence that America's 10 million motorcycle riders be forced to wear headgear. The law, in effect since 1967, is part of a Highway Safety Act that mandates state compliance at penalty of forfeiture of assistance funds. Since money balks, all but two states now have helmet laws for cyclists.

Admittedly, it is difficult to sympathize, whatever the grievance, with anything to do with motorcycles.

Nonetheless, forcing a cyclist to wear a helmet for his health is on the order of laws requiring daily use of the toothbrush. Clearly, neither matter is of business to anyone but the individual.

Big Mama argues otherwise, increasingly insisting that the individual must be protected against intrusion of state police powers into the private affairs of every American.

Besides motorcycle safety, the government regulates sex, personal hygiene, morality, etc. In what he obviously means as a warning to Americans, Russian author Aleksandr Solzhenitsyn has told of a Soviet government that is not satisfied unless it can monitor all that people do, the implied excuse being that they are not responsible enough to do anything alone.

Democracy rejects the latter notion, and the Supreme Court on a number of occasions has agreed. State interference in private activity must have overriding public purpose; the Court said in Mugler vs. Kansas (1887), because, "Our system of government, based upon the individuality and intelligence of the citizen, does not claim to control him, except as to his conduct to others, leaving him the sole judge as to all that only affects himself."

North Carolina Sen. Jesse Helms has used this argument in introducing a proposal to put logic above government and repeal compulsory helmet regulations.

No doubt Helms' bill faces a long road. Even at a time when the public cries for release from government's grip, Big Mama continues to feel it knows best and the grip tightens. Helmets for motorcyclists are so important, say some lawmakers, that the next step is helmets for bicyclists.

Such is the zeal for no-risk legislation here, that one congressman has given serious thought, according to second-hand reports, to the idea of asking manufacturers to put four wheels on three-wheel bikes. Better stability, the man allegedly feels, will reduce the number of skinned knees and bruised arms.

Some weeks ago President Ford told the American public that his future intention was to get the government "out of your lives; out of your pocketbooks, out of your hair." Perhaps he will also get it out of our way, for surely we can't get anywhere with Big Mama watching.

Reform Swells Labor Clout

WASHINGTON — If the current Campaign Finance Reform law had been in effect during the 1972 presidential primaries, Sen. Hubert Humphrey — not Sen. George McGovern — would have been the Democratic nominee, and might perhaps even have been elected President.

That is the startling message from New Hampshire, where the first statewide test of the new law resulted last week in the election of Democrat John Durkin to the Senate seat which had been in dispute since a virtual deadlock vote last November.

The election demonstrated that the new law has given organized labor unexpected new clout. For the campaign spending ceiling now imposed upon each candidate doesn't include the political activities of either unions or corporations, so long as they are confined to influencing their own members or stockholders.

But it much easier for big labor to help a candidate than it is for a corporation. Not many candidates care to have it publicized that big business likes them. And corporate shareholders are not inclined to man telephone banks; they tend to be geographically scattered, and they tend to possess diverse political views unrelated to their stock holdings.

But labor has long practiced the art of producing volunteer campaign bodypower and persuading members and their families to vote the right way. In New Hampshire, the unions provided literature and workers that were not counted against Durkin's limit, while his Republican rival was forced to siphon funds from his television budget to cover the cost of his workers. As a result, Republican Louis Wyman had less to spend for media promotion than did Durkin.

This is a new problem, for Republicans as well as any other candidate who is not a labor favorite. In the past, non-labor candidates have adequately compensated for labor's free manpower pool by drawing upon the generous contributions of wealthy businessmen. But they can no longer do this.

The support of labor appears to be crucial for any Democratic presidential candidate who wants to make it. And that seems to increase primarily the prospects of Sens. Henry Jackson and Birch Bayh. AFL-CIO President George Meany is currently miffed at Jackson, but Jackson has solid labor ties nonetheless. Bayh has strong connections in the United Auto Workers and a good labor voting record.

Rep. Morris Udall, however, has never been forgiven for voting against 14-b, a measure to curtail right-to-work laws. Sargent Shriver has no particular claim on labor's affection, nor have any of the others.

Ford Gains Slightly, Poll Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — A Harris poll shows President Ford's performance rating is slightly better this month but still negative, while Mrs. Ford's is definitely on the positive side.

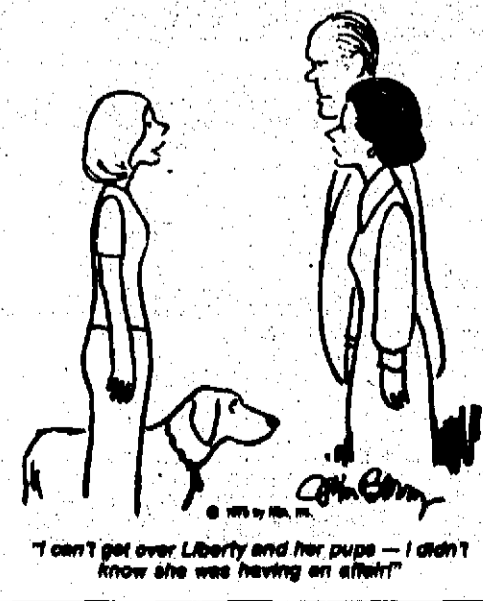

The poll of 1,407 persons across the country, who were asked to give such ratings as "excellent," "good," "fair" and "poor" to Ford's performance in his job, showed 41 per cent with positive reactions and 56 per cent answering negatively.

This was an improvement over his 39-38 per cent negative rating in an August poll.

The new poll showed 50 per cent of those questioned approve of Mrs. Ford's performance as First Lady, with 36 per cent giving her a negative rating.

Pollster Louis Harris, noting that Ford's job rating had been fairly stable, and negative, since the first of the year, said the results "must point to potential difficulties for the President" in an election campaign.

BH Man Sues To Get Teaching Job Back

MIKEY D. JOHNSON
Seeking re-employment

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

A Berrien Circuit judge yesterday took under advisement a case in which a fired Niles junior high school teacher seeks re-employment by alleging the board meeting at which he was fired was illegal.

The half-day non-jury trial was held before Judge Julian E. Hughes, who said an opinion on the case may be ready within two months barring any delays. The only testimony during the trial concerned what allegedly took place at the Niles school board meeting.

The dismissed teacher, Mickey D. Johnson, of Highland avenue, Benton Harbor, wants the court to order the school board to continue his employment by awarding a 1975-76 contract. Johnson was a teacher at Ballard junior high school in 1973-74 and 1974-75.

The board terminated his employment at a meeting held March 26, and claims that since he was notified of his termination before he completed two years of teaching, he was not covered by tenure.

Johnson contends that he was not discharged, claiming the meeting was illegal because the board at the meeting did not elect an acting president and because the acting president did not designate anyone to act as board secretary.

Johnson claims that since the meeting was illegal he is now covered by tenure.

The board claimed that a quorum was present, that by assent Treasurer Jack Creden was named acting president, and that he designated Member Leshe Hahn as secretary.

The minutes of the meeting state Johnson was dismissed for lack of significant improvement in his relations with his students; his failure to control his emotions resulting in confrontations with students; and for failing to be flexible in the approach to students when challenged.

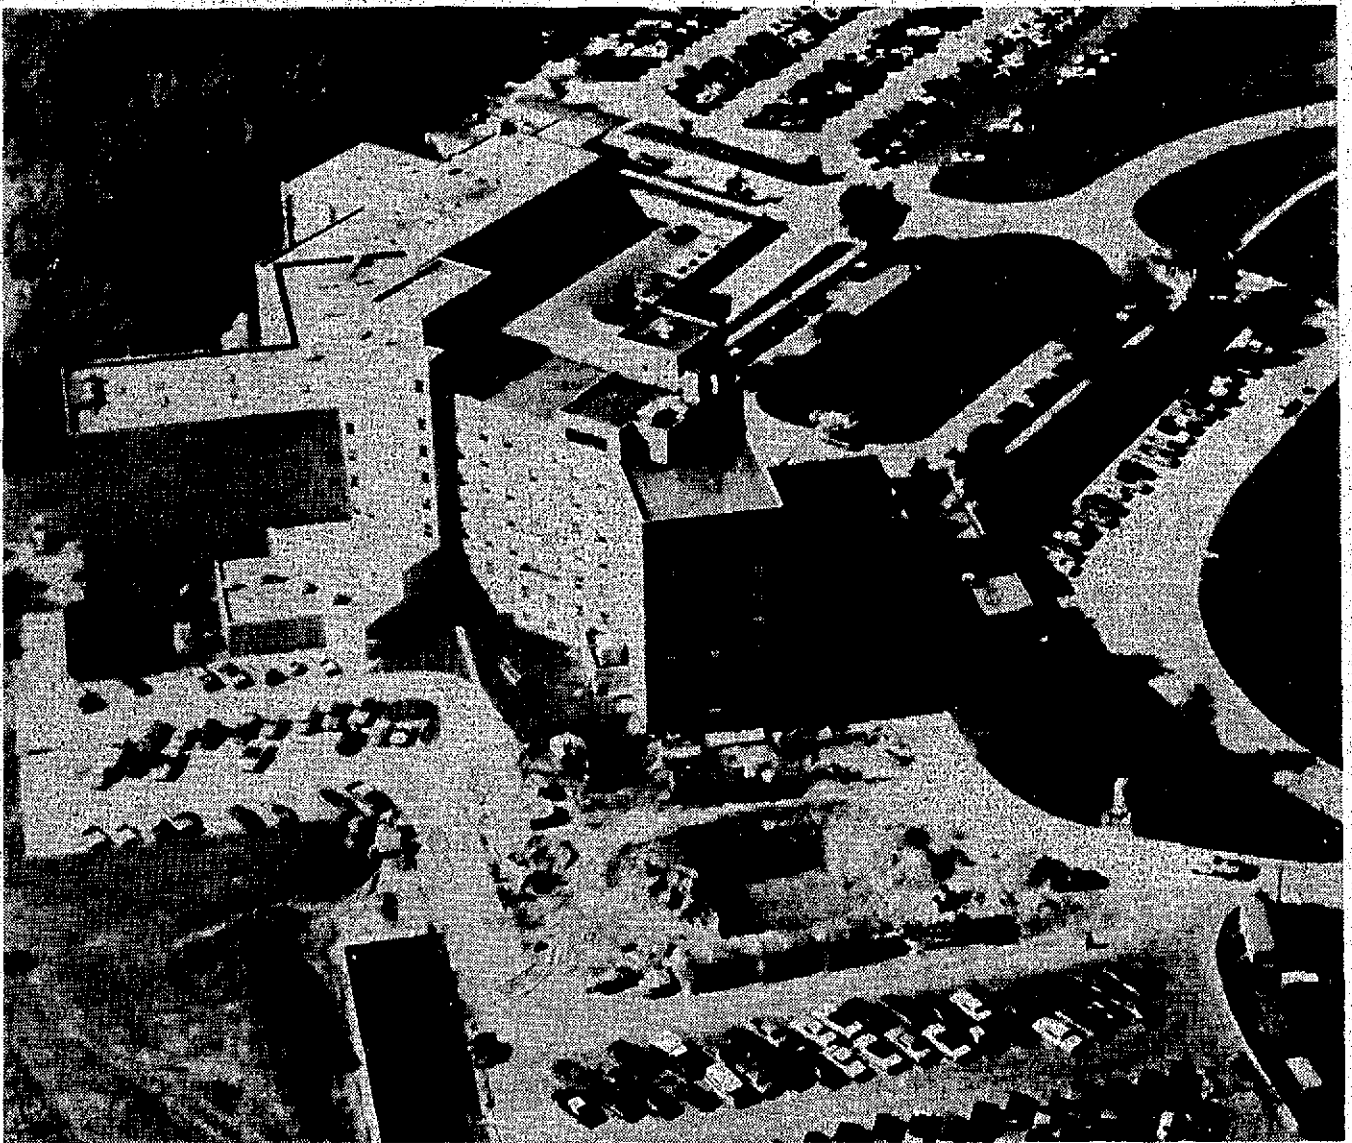

'Save Our City' Topic Saturday

The Twin City Area NAACP branch has announced a mass meeting to "Save Our City and Community" Saturday, Oct. 4, at 7 p.m. in Pilgrim Rest Baptist church, 1105 East Main street, Benton Harbor.

Hershel McKenzie, branch president, said the meeting will cover seven topics of primary importance to blacks but also affecting the Twin City area and Berrien county.

McKenzie said topics to be covered include unemployment, bad housing, denial of equal credit opportunities, health services, crime, political oppression of black political leaders who stand up and speak out, and "plantation politics" where black decisions are subverted.

A panel of speakers is being lined up on the various topics, McKenzie added.

New Tourist 'High'

DETROIT (AP) — Michigan's tourist business should hit a new high this year, despite the triple problems of rain, recession and the high cost of gasoline, according to the Automobile Club of Michigan. The auto club on Thursday estimated there would be a 15 per cent increase in tourism this year over the previous boom year of 1973, when $1.89 billion was spent by Michigan tourists. The survey showed summer business up about 10 per cent over the old record year of 1973 and was 15 to 20 per cent ahead of 1974. "Our records show the most interest ever in Michigan travel by Michiganders," said Joseph Ratke, Auto Club touring manager. "Sixty cents a gallon gasoline, the recession and unemployment have not delayed travel to other states from Michigan either, with summer routing requests up 21 and 16 per cent respectively for 1973 and 1974 compared with 1975.

BH Has Two-Year Wait For State Office Building

By JIM SHANAHAN
City Editor

Benton Harbor Mayor Charles F. Joseph said about 1977 appears to be the earliest a state central office building can be assured for Benton Harbor.

Joseph announced last March he was seeking designation of Benton Harbor as a state service center which would mean a central office building to house various state agencies now scattered about the area.

Benton Harbor is near the bottom of some half dozen cities in the state with remaining high priorities for central office buildings, according to the State Department of Management and Budget.

Detroit and Grand Rapids projects were authorized first. Traverse City is next on the list followed by Saginaw, Flint, Jackson, Benton Harbor and Marquette.

Joseph said he saw the Grand Rapids building nearing completion recently and "it looks great."

He said the procedure for launching a state office building is to get a planning appropriation one year and an appropriation for the building the next budget year.

"We've done some ground-work and it appears a building of 55,000 square would be needed here," Joseph said. He estimated $25,000 to $40,000 would be needed for planning money.

"We're talking about downtown for a location. Such a building could help rejuvenate retail trade," Joseph said in noting banks, telephone company and gas company currently downtown.

He said examples of some state offices that could be located in a central building are license bureau, Employment Security commission and Michigan Department of Agriculture. The agencies wouldn't include state police or highway department.

Benton Harbor teachers returned to their classrooms today after virtually closing down schools Thursday in a one-day protest over the lack of progress in contract negotiations.

Mrs. Camilla Hunt, president of the Benton Harbor Education Association, said she expected all teachers to be in school today "if they have to crawl to get there," but she did not rule out the possibility of future walkouts if negotiations remain deadlocked.

"I hope we don't have to go through this business again, but anything is possible," she said. "Until we have a contract this kind of thing is going to have to go on."

Mrs. Hunt said the teachers yesterday gathered more than 3,000 signatures from district residents on petitions asking the board of education to submit the contract dispute to arbitration. She said the petitions would be presented to the school board next week.

She also said the teachers have prepared an open letter to the board asking for a formal reply to the request for arbitration and for a return to the bargaining table.

She said the letter would appear in the form of an advertisement in this newspaper and would ask for a response from the board before a scheduled faculty meeting next Wednesday at 4 p.m. at the high school.

Board president E.E. (Bill) Bentley said earlier this week that "we never will agree to binding arbitration — no matter what it is called."

The board voted Wednesday night to subtract one day's wages from paychecks of all teachers who did not report Thursday, but Mrs. Hunt suggested that the money might have to be paid teachers at a later date.

"We called the State Board of Education and they told us it was not an official day of school and would have to be made up," she said. "We know that 70 per cent of the children have to be in school for it to be an official day, and by the board's own figures there weren't anywhere near that many."

Acting superintendent Robert W. Payne, however, said that "it is considered a day of school and is not going to be made up," although the absence of students would cause a minor reduction in the amount of state aid Benton Harbor will receive.

Payne reported Thursday that only 15 per cent of the students and 27 per cent of the teachers were present at the start of the school day. He described attendance today as normal.

A similar teacher protest Thursday completely closed the Wayland schools in Allegan county.

Nearly 2,000 Wayland students rode buses all the way to school but were back home again almost before the sun rose when only one-third of the district's 120 teachers reported to work.

Wayland teachers also were back in school today.

Girls spotted billfold on top of car and followed auto on their bicycles to tell her. Girls picked up billfold and contents after it fell from car and took it to Carri's grandmother's Mrs. Erma Thompson of Coloma, who notified police, who in turn notified Mrs. Dunn, who had returned to laundromat in search of her billfold. ADOPT SYSTEM TO MAKE CHORES EASIER

Hotel Housekeeper Gives Suggestions

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

Newlyweds and singles frustrated with housekeeping might peep themselves into it by adopting a system similar to that used by professional maids.

Few young people enjoy a role in the domestic arts.

"In fact, many women consider it beneath their dignity to do such work. We are having more and more difficulty getting young maids to work in ho-els," says Ann Husek, a hotel housekeeper, who has trained many maids in her 20 years with hotels in San Francisco, Chicago and Milwaukee.

"In my day, mother was a task master," she continued. "If you didn't do a job well you had to do it over until you learned how to do it properly. It became a challenge. But young people do not have the patience to do such jobs any more."

Yet running a house can be made interesting, once you develop some pride in your efforts, Mrs. Husek contends, and working people should develop an easy-does-it routine that includes a little picking up in the morning so the house will look neat when they return home in the evening. This should avoid facing a cluttered living room, unmade beds and dirty towels before going on to the task of cooking dinner.

Before going off to work, make the beds quickly, pick up the towels for the laundry and replace those that have been used, she advises. This should take only a few minutes. At the year-old Hyatt Regency in Chicago, where Mrs. Husek has a staff of more than 100 for the house-and-or-so rooms, maids are expected to clean and make two of the two-bed rooms in an hour.

To make chores easier, choose a weekly cleaning day when you will do a thorough washdown and cleanup, and then systematize the daily tasks. Soon you will find that the routine falls into place easily.

Here are some of her useful pointers:

— When you strip the bed to change the sheets, never put bed linens on the floor. It is poor housekeeping. Give the bed a chance to air with linens removed while you clean the bathroom.

— Clean fixtures, mirror, floor and tile. Done regularly, it will always look clean and bright, otherwise grime will take longer to erase. (The same applies to the kitchen range. Wash it each time and the soil will not become encrusted.)

— She suggests vinegar or ammonia in water as one of the best ways to clean mirrors and windows. Rust-stained porous surfaces can be helped with commercial stain remover. Bleach mixed with water will remove sediment from enamel.

— Some detergents work by delayed action. Place full-strength detergent on hard-to-remove soil of bathroom tiles or shower stalls and work it into the stain before rinsing.

— Bed linens should be placed in cold (not hot) water if stained and put through the regular machine wash cycle. Do not use Photoelectric detectors require a build-up of smoke before activating, but still provide reasonable advance warning of fires, Pickens believes.

A single early-warning detector mounted on or near the ceiling outside each sleeping area offers protection against nighttime fires. A UL-approved device retails for about $50. However, rapid improvements in technology could cut the price in half within a few years.

Battery-powered units are easiest to install, but homeowners must realize certain that batteries are replaced at regular 12-month intervals to assure that the detector is in good working order. Other models are wired or plugged into the household electrical system but they will not function during a blackout or when an electrical fire knocks out power to the unit, Pickens says.

invisible products of combustion given off during the earliest stage of a fire.

Photoelectric (smoke) detectors sound an alarm when smoke from a smoldering fire cuts across a beam of light reaching a photoelectric cell built into the device.

Not included in the category of early-warning detectors are various heat-sensitive devices. Although useful in certain situations, heat detectors do not normally activate until a fire is well advanced.

"Many victims of nighttime fires die in their sleep from smoke or toxic fumes before the flames ever reach them," Pickens says. "Therefore, the sooner an alarm is sounded, the better."

Many experts contend that ionization detectors provide the greatest margin of safety and are the most reliable devices currently on the market. In many cases, ionization detectors are capable of responding to a fire before there is visible smoke or flame.

Only Takes Four Minutes For Home Fire To Spread

Four minutes is enough time for an athlete to run a mile, but it is a desperately short interval for a family to escape a burning home at night.

Fire safety experts say that four minutes is all it takes for a fire to spread through an average home, reaching an intensity unbearable to human life.

"The great majority of home fire fatalities take place at night when families are asleep," says John L. Pickens, a loss control executive for a leading insurance company. "The sad fact is that many of them die in bed without ever knowing what hit them."

Each year, according to the National Fire Protection Association, 12,000 Americans die in fires and 300,000 are seriously injured.

Pickens is one of a growing number of insurance and fire safety officials who believe that early-warning detectors can save lives and reduce property loss in nighttime fires.

An early-warning detector is an electronic device which sounds an alarm automatically at the presence of a fire. Early-warning detectors are of two basic types, either of which can be powered by batteries or by household current.

'Your Problems' By Ann Landers

Childbirth Makes Dad Sick

Dear Ann Landers: What do you think of a 25-year-old man who refuses to accompany his wife to the hospital when she has her first child because he says any aspect of childbirth makes him sick? He claims he becomes nauseated when he sees a picture of a fetus in a magazine.

This man is well-educated, has always been a good husband and says he wants three or four children. But he doesn't want to be around when they are born.

I have tried to explain how much a woman needs to have her husband near to comfort her during such a time but he says his problem goes back to childhood, and he just can't help it.

It seems unnatural that a mature man would have this terrific hangup. Any suggestions? He said you'd side with him because you understand human nature and will agree that nobody can change the spots on a leopard — P.G. And Mazerable were married to a leopard. I thought you were talking about a man. If my assumption is correct, urge him to get counseling through your pediatrician. Merely because the guy picked up some goofy ideas from his mother or his Aunt Matilda is no reason he must limp through life — emotionally hobbled, depriving himself (and you) of the most exciting of all human experiences.

Penny-Pincher

Dear Ann Landers: I come from a family of seven children, all alive and financially comfortable. One member of our family is so unbelievably cheap when it comes to gift-giving that it's a disgrace. She is a woman of means, yet she gives presents the average person would be ashamed to drop off at Goodwill or the Salvation Army. It's always a second-hand, worn-out piece of junk, or something she bought at a garage sale.

Recently my husband and I received a gift that was so shoddy the only place for it was the trash can. I was infuriated. I told my husband, "This is the limit. I'm really going to let her know I've had enough of her chintziness."

My husband feels I should say nothing. His philosophy is, "A gift is whatever you want to give."

Is it possible that if I blew my top I might be doing my sister-in-law a favor? Maybe she'd wise up and stop presenting such shameful pieces of junk. — Insulted Once Too Often

Dear Ann Landers: Save your wind to cool your soup, Honeybun. The Last of the Big Spenders is not about to mend her ways. Those types are incurable. She's a penny-pinching cheapskate and shameless in the bargain. Just keep saying "Thank you," and head for the trash can when Lady Bountiful's garbage arrives.

Choose Mom

Dear Ann Landers: Mom and Dad are getting divorced. I'm a girl 14 and the judge says I can choose which parent I want to live with. Help me decide, please.

ANN LANDERS

Mom is overprotective. She wants to know where I am every minute. Dad is more lenient but he spends a lot of time in his business and he wouldn't pay very much attention to me.

My brother Keith (age 17) chose to stay with Dad. Keith has a hot temper and punches me out whenever he feels like it. I don't need this treatment.

What do you say, Ann? — See Saw Marjorie Daw

Dear Marge: Go with your mother. A 14-year-old girl doesn't need a lenient, busy dad and a hot-tempered brother who punches her out whenever he feels like it.

Is alcoholism ruining your life? Know the danger signals and what to do. Read the booklet, "Alcoholism — Hope and Help," by Ann Landers. Enclose 50 cents in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 1400, Elgin, Ill. 60120.

'The Picnic Gourmet'

While sitting in the doctor's office last week awaiting my appointment, I leafed through a magazine that sent a chill down my spine.

It showed the Hemingway clan, Muffet, Puck and Margaux, at a picnic in the mountains. It seems Muffet just authored a new book called, "The Picnic Gourmet," setting out to prove a picnic could be very special.

To perform this miracle she chose a remote mountain spot by a cooling stream, cloth napkins and table cloth, enameled Chinese plates, big wine goblets, and of course a simple menu of cold watercress soup (kept cool in the stream), asparagus-wrapped ham, whole wheat bread baked by Muffet, strawberry daiquiris, chicken roasted and stuffed with wild garlic and herbs, yogurt, cucumbers and mint, banana cake and for a touch of the ordinary, four-bean salad.

You cannot imagine what this does to a woman who thought aspic was a ski resort in Colorado and turkey divan was a bad buy on a sofa.

Putting down the magazine, I couldn't help but remember our last family picnic.

We chose the last spot in the park... between the "facilities" and a camper full of kids whose father sat in a folding chair without a shirt drinking beer.

As I was cleaning the spilled baked beans out of the car trunk my husband noted the kids had left the lid open on the cooler and the ice had melted. Bacteria was moving in on the potato salad.

The older boy took charge of the hamburgers... throwing his body over a grill to reserve it, then yelling back for the charcoal, the charcoal lighter, the hamburger and the matches. We had everything but the matches.

We were seated around a stadium blanket when a motorcycle ran over the Twinkies. A Frisbee landed in the potato salad. Our youngest cut his foot on a flip-top cap and bled on the last two ice cubes. I checked on the Tab I had put in the stream to "chill." Someone had stolen it.

"What seems to be the trouble?" asked the nurse, summoning me for my appointment.

"I have just developed a pain back here," I said.

"In the neck?" ("No, lower.")

"Your shoulder?" ("Your back.")

"Lower." ("Your back.")

"A little lower." ("Here!")

Opening lead — A

By Oswald & James Jacoby

The unlucky expert had contrived us again.

"Look, look at this hand!" he exclaimed.

"What happened?" we asked.

"Did your partner put you in seven or did you miss the slam?"

"Neither," he replied. "We bid the hand to a normal six diamonds."

"You don't mean to say that the ace of hearts was opened against you to hold you to six while other declarers got some other lead and made an over-trick?"

"Worse than that," he groaned. "Desperate Dan sat East. He had passed throughout the bidding with his 6-5 distribution and four-high-card points. Then when my partner bid six diamonds Dan thought: cleared his throat and bid six spades."

Our friend is really entitled to complain about this one. When Dan bid six spades, he was taking the sort of gamble that is foreign to all principles of good bridge except that once in a while these horrible gambles pay off. This time it did. Dan got himself a top score by his crazy action.

Ask the Jacobys

A Minneapolis reader wants to know what he should have done after opening one club with:

AKQxx AJx AJx 10xx when his partner bid four clubs after a three spade overall.

The answer is that he should have passed. He might be missing a game, but it is far more likely that he would be missing a lot of trouble.

His partner's raise to four clubs was not a forcing bid and our correspondent should have visualized a lot of trouble ahead of him.

Dr. Lester Coleman

I'm constantly reading about the new science of biofeedback. Why is there so much excitement about it as a form of medical treatment?

Mr. B.T. Tex

Dear Mr. T.: There is great interest in the new science known as biofeedback.

Its early promises now seem to be opening broad areas of research in the control of body function.

For centuries it has been known that the yogi was able to control the depth of his respiration, the rate of his heart beat and even the degree of perspiration, by an explained control over his involuntary nervous system.

A highly specialized autonomic nervous system is a division of the general nervous system of the body. Unlike the rest of our nervous system, the autonomic subdivision is involved in the involuntary control of body functions.

Biofeedback is, in essence, a method by which the involuntary control can be placed under voluntary control.

By studying brain waves and altering some of them, it is felt that biofeedback may be valuable for the control of anxiety, deep-seated fears, drug abuse and alcoholism.

Some enthusiasts even feel that insomnia, headaches, high blood pressure and social adjustment to society may be affected by biofeedback training.

At the Morton Prince Center for Hypnotherapy, in New York City, biofeedback is being used to break the habit of smoking and to "modify" behavior in people who are markedly overweight.

Dr. Milton V. Kline, Director of the Morton Prince Center, believes that within the framework of the newer studies in biofeedback there lies an enormous potential for controlling psychological problems that resist other methods of treatment.

Do the adenoids tend to disappear as the child grows older?

Mrs. E.D. Wm.

Dear Mrs. D.: Usually, past puberty, the adenoids tend to become smaller.

It is relatively rare for teenagers and young adults to have persistent and bothersome adenoids, even if the tonsils still do present a problem.

Surgery, therefore, in this age group is directed only to the removal of tonsils if repeated sore throats occur.

DR. COLEMAN welcomes letters from readers, and while he cannot undertake to answer each one, he will use questions in his column whenever possible and when they are of general interest. Address your letters to Dr. Coleman in care of this newspaper.

Citizens To Get Peek At U.S. Records

By DON SANDERS
Associated Press Writer
WASHINGTON (AP) — Starting Saturday, U.S. citizens will be able to find out what information about them the government has stored away and be able to correct that data if it is erroneous.

The new Privacy Act of 1974 also requires government agencies to disclose the names of their record systems to help citizens find out if their names are listed. It also allows a citizen to find out who has been looking at any particular government file.

Some 79 agencies already have announced the names of more than 8,000 record systems, including lists of persons whose names have come to the attention of the Justice Department's general crimes section in connection with potential or actual cases, payrolls of government agencies, time records of employees of the Alaska Railroad and lists of persons who have applied for parking space on government property.

Also among the records listed in some 3,000 pages of material printed in the Federal Register is a Pentagon list of persons who keep pets on military bases — presumably in the event of a rabies threat.

Federal Register officials administering the act estimate that the total number of record systems covered will be more than 8,000.

The new law, sponsored by former Sen. Sam Ervin, D-N.C.

and Sen. Charles H. Percy, R-Ill., was enacted in the wake of Watergate-inspired concerns about government snooping, and it attempts to limit access to government files dealing with individuals. As such, its purpose clashes with that of the Freedom of Information Act, which is designed to open government data to the public.

Lawyers who helped draft the Privacy Law or the FOI act say there may be some future problems in making the two laws mesh. For example, a person may make a request under either law. But because there are different exemptions in both acts, a request turned down under the Privacy Act might be honored if made under the FOI law.

When Congress passed the Privacy Law with the support of President Ford, who headed a commission on individual privacy while he was vice president, the lawmakers set forth findings that:

—The increasing use of computers and sophisticated information technology has greatly magnified the harm to individual privacy that can occur from any collection....

—The opportunities for an individual to secure employment, insurance and credit, and his right to due process and other legal protections, are endangered by the misuse of certain information systems....

Exemptions from provisions of the law are police intelligence and investigation data, although criminal records and arrest records will be available to the person involved. Also exempt is material relating to employment eligibility, federal contracts and civil service tests.

Agent Handled Moore Pistol

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A gun collector says an undercover federal firearms agent unwittingly examined the gun Sara Jane Moore bought and, a day later, shot at President Ford.

"The man handled several guns in my attaché case," collector Mark Fernwood said Thursday. "I'm almost certain he handled the one she shot at the President. I know he saw it."

Law enforcement sources said Mrs. Moore drove the unidentified agent to Fernwood's Danville home Sunday after she had given police and the Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms (ATF) information about possible federal gun control law violations.

"On Sunday, about 12 noon, she and a man named Chuck came over in her car," Fernwood recalled Thursday. "They came out to look at guns. She wanted to pay me for a pistol she bought two weeks ago and wrote me out a check. He expressed an interest in buying some guns and I showed him my collection."

The federal sources said the ATF agent observed Mrs. Moore write Fernwood a $125 check for a .44-caliber revolver which she purchased two weeks earlier. That gun was seized by San Francisco police later Sunday, after she hinted to police about her assassination plans.

But Mrs. Moore replaced it with a .38-caliber revolver purchased from Fernwood on Monday, then shot at the President outside a downtown San Francisco hotel.

Fernwood said that at the time he had no inkling "Chuck" — described as a clean-cut, "nondescript" man in his early 30's — was an agent, but noticed that Mrs. Moore and her companion showed little rapport.

"He might have asked a few questions about my collection, but not too many," said the balding, 26-year-old antique weapons collector. "But there was nothing in the questions to indicate that he was investigating anything. He seemed to be just tagging along."

Teamsters Seek Stepped-Up Hunt For Jimmy Hoffa

By RICHARD SALTUS
Associated Press Writer
LOS ANGELES (AP) — A reform-minded rank-and-file Teamsters Union group is calling for a stepped-up federal investigation of the disappearance of former union leader James R. Hoffa.

The "Action for Hoffa" group, based in suburban Baldwin Park, said Thursday it and similar groups in other cities are "holding a benchhead" against the current union leadership of President Frank Fitzsimmons.

Coordinator John T. Williams said he was uncertain how many members his recently formed group had. However, the organization's letterhead contains a "partial list" of steering committee members representing 25 locals.

Williams was asked at a news conference if he believed someone within the 2.2-million member Teamsters Union was involved in Hoffa's disappearance.

He responded that a full investigation should proceed with "no Watergate coverups and no 'untouchables' untouched — whether the persons responsible were outside the union or in the union."

Williams said his group, which he likened to an "underground railway" within the union, was concerned about the "vacuum of silence" during the time Hoffa has been missing.

"It is equivalent to the President being missing and no one in the White House talking about it," said Williams. He spoke generally about a "specter of fear" haunting "anyone who speaks with conviction." He declined to identify more specifically either the source of the fear or those who are afraid.

The group has begun a telegram petition drive, he said, asking President Ford to order a Justice Department investigation of the Hoffa case.

The group plans an "Action for Hoffa" rally in downtown Los Angeles Saturday. Hoffa's son, James P. Hoffa, is the "invited guest," but has indicated he probably will not attend.

Asked if he would like to see the younger Hoffa assume union leadership, Williams replied: "We are not advocating who should run for office. But we believe the membership should have the right to vote to determine who should lead our union."

Presently, he explained, rank-and-file members elect delegates who vote for officers of the international union. Williams said one of the main goals of his group is to bring about reform in the election of officers and directors of the pension funds and health plan.

Ford's Visit To Michigan Game Remains Uncertain

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The White House has refused to confirm or deny whether President Ford's visit to the Michigan-Michigan State game is among those trips being cutback after two recent attempts on the President's life.

CBS News reported Thursday that Ford would not attend the Oct. 11 football game.

But White House officials said they could only comment on trips confirmed at a press briefing Thursday. Presidential Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford's scheduled trip destinations now include Chicago next Tuesday, Omaha on Wednesday and Knoxville, Tenn., on Oct. 7.

Some of the trips that have been rumored or speculated about or tentative or reported to be under consideration are not on the President's schedule, Nessen said.

Asked if security considerations were a factor, Nessen said he did not know all the reasons involved. The cutback has been urged by many after two attempts on the President's life in less than a month.

A spokesman for the Michigan State campus police said the security force had not been notified that Ford's visit had been cancelled.

No security plans have been made yet, he said. Those plans would be formulated with the Secret Service about a week before the game.

The main problem, he said, would be protecting Ford in a crowd of 76,000 people inside the stadium.

"There's no way we could protect him from someone in the crowd with a firearm. There will be between 40,000 and 50,000 people with a clear view of the President," he said.

Even a medium-powered rifle could probably reach across the stadium, he said.

Ford was urged to use the press box facilities at the stadium because they afforded better security. But the spokesman said Ford had indicated he wanted to sit in the stands.

"That ties our arms in terms of security," he said. "Even with 1,000 officers, if we could get that many, there's no way to protect him in a crowd of 76,000. It only takes one person."

Tape Reveals Patty Still 'Revolutionary Feminist'

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — A private conversation recorded by authorities reveals Patricia Hearst as a still-ardent "revolutionary feminist" seeking freedom on bail, but not as a prisoner in her parents' home.

The transcript of the jailhouse conversation with childhood friend Patricia Tobin was made public Thursday. It left Patty's parents apparently shaken.

Her mother, Catherine, usually composed, called newsmen "a bunch of ghouls" as they sought comment on the excerpted transcript. And Mrs. Hearst and her husband, Randolph A. Hearst, cut short a jail visit with Miss Hearst Thursday night.

The conversation, recorded last Saturday at the San Mateo County jail, opens with Miss Hearst declaring:

"I'm not making any statements until I know that I can get out of you know, bail ... bailed out, and then if I find out that I can't, for sure, then I'll issue a statement."

"But I would just as soon give myself in person and it'll be a revolutionary feminist perspective totally, and you know I never got ... I guess I'll just tell you, like, my politics are real different, from way back when."

Miss Hearst laughed and then added:

"And so this creates all kinds of problems for me in terms of a defense."

Miss Hearst already faces a variety of state and federal charges including bank robbery and kidnapping.

As the partial transcript of the conversation was released in court documents, police said they are checking weapons seized when Miss Hearst was arrested to see if they were used in a double murder that left a radical prison reform leader dead.

Wilbert "Poppey" Jackson and a Vallejo teacher were shot to death June 8 with a 9mm pistol, similar to ones found in apartments where authorities say Miss Hearst and her comrades were living.

The conversation with Miss Tobin was detailed in documents sent to a court-appointed panel of psychiatrists charged with examining Miss Hearst's mental competency by U.S. District Court Judge Oliver Carter.

The transcript was provided the court by U.S. Atty. James L. Browning Jr. It varies from the view of Miss Hearst contained in her affidavit filed earlier this week.

The conversation was recorded as Patty and her friend talked over a closed circuit telephone line at the jail in Redwood City as they were separated by a glass panel.

Miss Hearst's jailers said they routinely record conversations involving inmates as a security measure. Carter declined comment on the use of the tape as evidence, saying the only issue he has to decide now is Miss Hearst's mental competency.

When Miss Tobin asked her if she wanted to go home, Patty replied:

"Well, what I want to do is ... I don't want to have the bail thing where I am a prisoner in my parents' home, which is possible."

In the transcript of the tape recording with Miss Tobin, the heiress was asked whether she was talking openly with her parents at the jail.

"I'm not talking to anybody real openly, because it's too weird and besides, like they listen in on everything..." she said.

Miss Tobin asked the newspaper heiress if she was really shocked at her capture.

"Yeah," she replied.

The transcript submitted to the judge by Browning contained only excerpts of a longer transcript, which was not revealed in its entirety. Some passages were difficult to decipher because of apparent gaps, or pauses, in the conversation.

Meanwhile, Miss Hearst's cotrades, Bill and Emily Harris, were under around-the-clock observation today in a high-security jail atop the Hall of Justice in Los Angeles after arraignment on charges stemming from an alleged crime spree with Patty Hearst.

The two Symbionese Liberation Army members were ordered held on $500,000 bail each Thursday and told to appear in Municipal Court Oct. 8 for a preliminary hearing on 18 felony charges, including assault with intent to commit murder and kidnapping.

Consumers Seeks Delay On Ottawa Smog Control

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Consumers Power Co. wants the state Air Pollution Control Commission to grant a five-year delay in requiring the utility to install a pollution-control device at an Ottawa County plant.

Consumers claims the $22 million cost will cut its budget for new plant construction without significantly improving air quality.

It also claims equipment additions planned for the next five years will eliminate the need for a larger precipitator, which more efficiently catches large particles.

Request for the postponement was made in a letter this week.

Ralph Purdy, deputy director for environmental protection for the Department of Natural Resources, said it apparently is the first time a firm requested a delay not because of the control standard, but for economic reasons.

A commission ruling in Consumers favor would set a precedent for other utilities to cite similar economic problems, Purdy said.

The commission also would have to recognize Consumers' argument, that though the plant's emissions violate commission standards, air quality in the area does not, Purdy said.

The commission always has applied the most restrictive standards to determine if a company is violating its rules, he said.

Under a September 1973 agreement with the commission, Consumers was to install two precipitators at its J. H. Campbell plant in Port Sheldon Township. It is installing the first at a cost of $12 million, but is asking the delay on the second.

"Strictly speaking, Consumers Power can afford this expenditure," said the letter from D. H. Brandt, director of environmental quality control. "However, it must be recognized that the commitment of $22 million for this project... will reduce the sum of money available for much-needed electric system additions and improvements."

Since January 1974, Consumers has postponed construction of four power units and cancelled one planned nuclear plant, the letter said.

Purdy said the commission might approve the request if the utility can prove equipment it plans to install by 1980 will, in fact, reduce emissions so that they fall within the commission's standards.

Consumers also would have to face a tougher battle of gaining approval from the federal Environmental Protection Agency if the commission approved the request, he said.

A public hearing on the request is scheduled for early November, Purdy said.

Saudi Arabia Stands Alone Against Big Oil Price Hike

VIENNA, Austria (AP) — Iran says nine of the 13 OPEC members meeting in Vienna are seeking a "moderate" increase of 10 to 20 per cent in the price of crude oil, leaving Saudi Arabia virtually alone in trying to hold the rise to 5 per cent.

Iranian Oil Minister Jamshid Amouzegar said one or two other members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries are demanding "pie-in-the-sky" increases of 25 per cent when the current nine-month price freeze expires Sept. 30.

Negotiations were continuing today, the third day of the OPEC meeting, and some delegation sources thought a compromise might be reached tonight. Unanimity is required for any decision by the group.

The Saudi oil minister, Sheikh Ahmed Zaki Yamani, walked out of the meeting Thursday and flew to London for private radio consultations with his government.

Later, after speaking with Riyadh, he told newsmen in the British capital: "I don't think I am now prepared to go over 5 per cent." But he said he did not think the differing positions in Vienna were "irreconcilable."

Nigerian Oil Minister Tunjo Akolom, one of the moderates, said Yamani "underestimated on the low side what was going to be sought. His negotiating position was too inflexible."

OPEC's present price schedule is based on a basic charge of $10.46 for a 42-gallon barrel of Saudi Arabia's Ras Tanura light crude. There are also various surcharges or differentials for higher quality crudes and for those produced closer to their markets, and delegation sources said a revision, downward of these charges was nearly complete.

Surcharges on higher quality crudes have already been reduced by a number of producers, because they have been hardest hit by the reduction in demand due to the worldwide recession.

State Is Still Trying To Split School Payments

By MALCOLM JOHNSON
Associated Press Writer

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The on-again, off-again plan to delay school aid payments this fall is on again — despite a state law and attorney general's opinion forbidding it.

State Treasurer Allison Green has ordered the $200 million October payment to be split in two parts; half to be paid next month and half in November. The reason is to avoid running a massive deficit in the two funds which provide the school aid money. The decision may make good on warnings that school districts will have to borrow money to meet expenses until all their money comes in. But state officials say the delay is a one-time-only cash-flow problem.

The state Administrative Board decided earlier this month to split the payments, despite warnings from John Porter, state superintendent of public instruction, that it would force financially strapped school districts to seek loans. But Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley torpedoed that decision by ruling the Administrative Board did not have the authority to split payments. He said the legislature "mandated bimonthly payments in advance," and if the procedure is to be changed, the legislature must change the law.

But Thursday, treasury officials said they didn't have enough money to make the payments and had the authority to delay them. "I don't think he (Kelley) was trying to say that if we didn't have the cash we should pay it," said Chief Deputy Treasurer Carroll Newton. But Asst. Atty. Gen. Stanley Steinborn said Green "does not have the authority" to split the payments. He added, however, "If there's no money, you can't pay it."

Steinborn said if a local district went to court to seek its entire payment in October "it would be very hard to find a defense against it."

Steinborn said Kelley's opinion did not just bar splitting payments by the Administrative Board, but ruled that bimonthly payments are the law. Newton said the split payments were necessary to avoid unwisely large deficits in the school aid fund and the state general fund — the two sources of school aid money.

Newton said the deficit in the two funds totals some $120 million, and further expenses this month plus the full school aid payment would send it soaring well over $300 million. "We don't want to be over $300 million in the red," he said.

IN MICHIGAN

Tests Confirm Case Of Encephalitis

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — One case of mosquito-borne encephalitis has been reported in central Michigan, but it is not the same type causing outbreaks in Illinois and other states, says a Lansing hospital official.

Laboratory test have confirmed a child from St. Johns in Clinton County contracted California encephalitis, said Dr. W. E. Maldonado, Sparrow Hospital pathology director.

The child has recovered and was sent home from Sparrow recently, Maldonado said.

No Role For Nixon

CLEVELAND (AP) — The Republican party national chairwoman, Mary Louise Smith, says she envisions no role for former President Richard M. Nixon at next year's national party convention, probably not even use of his picture for display.

Thursday.

Two other people hospitalized at Sparrow have been clinically diagnosed as having encephalitis, but the month-long lab tests needed for positive confirmation have not been finished, Maldonado said.

The mosquito-carried encephalitis causing problems in Illinois and surrounding states is called St. Louis encephalitis. The disease, which has broken out in Minnesota and Nebraska is Western Equine, or horse, encephalitis.

Neither type has been reported in Michigan, though California encephalitis has occurred in Michigan in the past. Ingham County Health Director Dr. George Dellaportas said there are 80 different kinds of encephalitis, and not all are carried by mosquitoes.

In 1973, there were 168 encephalitis cases in Michigan, and only three were mosquito-borne, said Dr. Norman Hayner, state epidemiologist.

Tally Reaches 38 In Ann Arbor Narcotics Raids

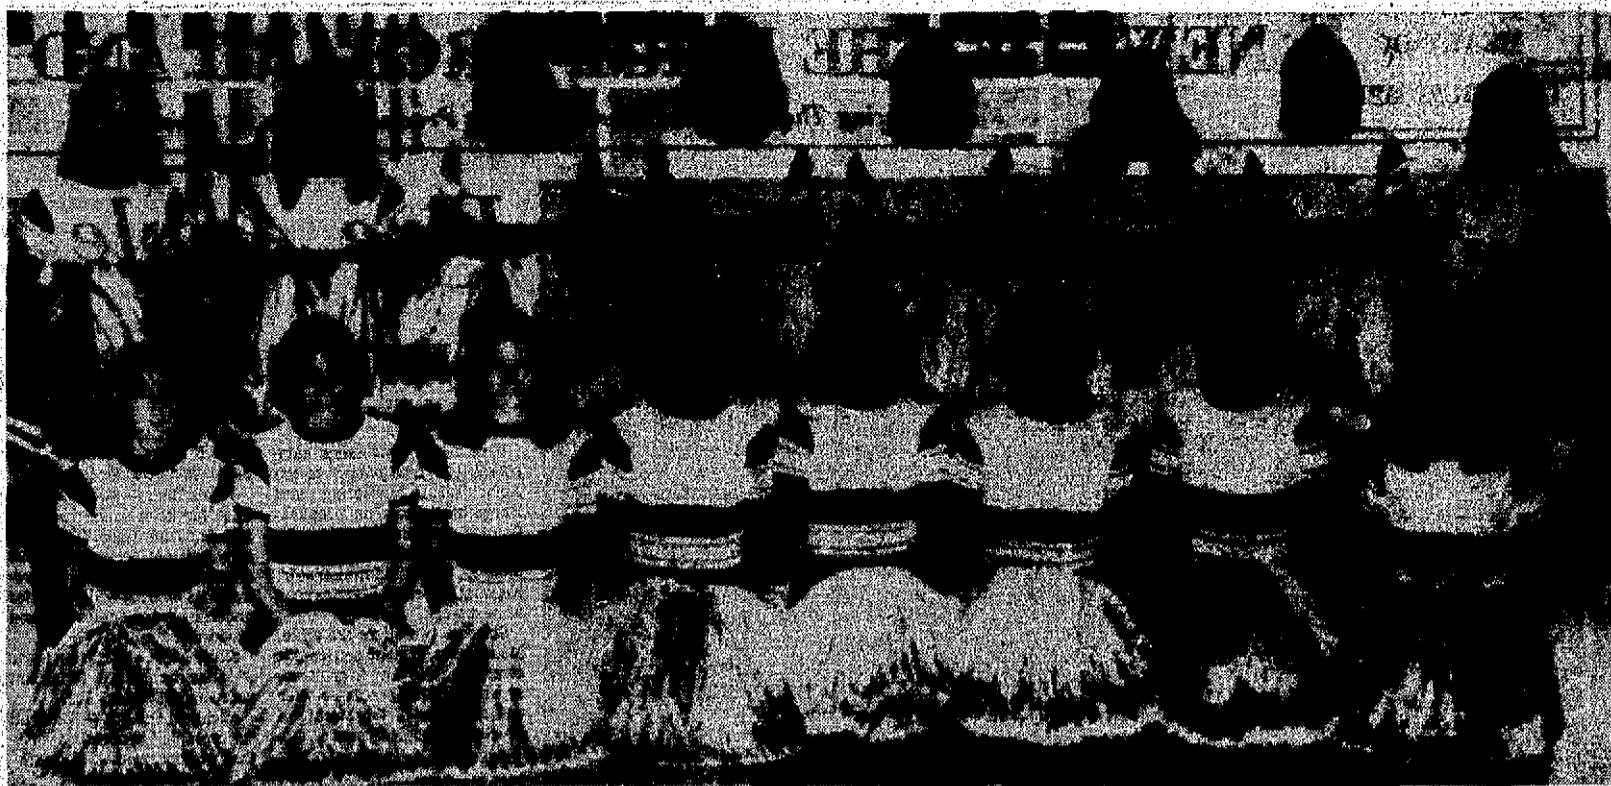

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Thirty-eight persons have been arrested and $4 million in heroin and other drugs seized in what police call a crippling blow to a drug supply center. The raids came Tuesday and Wednesday in this college town, which has the most lenient penalties in the nation for possession of marijuana. Federal investigators said the city's $5 fine for marijuana use is at least partly responsible for what they said was a thriving market in heroin, cocaine, hashish, "speed" and hallucinogens. "This campus community is a dramatic example of the progression of drug abuse," said Theodore L. Vernier, regional director of the Federal Drug Enforcement Administration.

None of those arrested were enrolled at the University of Michigan, which has its main campus here. They will be prosecuted under federal drug laws with maximum penalties of five years in prison and $5,000 fines, Vernier said.

Those arrested were among more than 50 using the town as a base of operations to distribute drugs, said Allan R. Pringle, deputy regional director of the DEA. Authorities called Ann Arbor a "virtual supermarket" for illicit drugs. Pringle said those arrested were not members of a ring but "freelance independents."

Investigators said the drugs were shipped to southeastern Michigan from the East Coast, West Coast, Mexico, Jamaica and Canada. The law enforcement officials said the distribution area for the drug traffickers included Michigan, Ohio, Colorado, Texas, Arizona, Florida and California. Authorities identified one of those arrested as James Moscare, 25, dog catcher for the Washtenaw County sheriff. Another was Beth Wells, once a calendar model for "Hustler" magazine.

All those arrested were to be charged in federal court in Detroit with sale and possession of controlled substances, federal spokesmen said.

State To Close District Welfare Offices

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Department of Social Services is closing down its nine district headquarters on Dec. 31 and cutting 315 jobs, eliminating what lawmakers considered an unnecessary layer of bureaucracy.

Officials say services to the one million people receiving some $700 million in aid annually will not be affected.

The cutback is in line with a legislative order designed to save $1.5 million a year.

"I don't see any changes with normal routine processing," said Ernie Davis, administrative aide to the department's deputy director.

The only slowdown will fall upon people thrown out of work in large numbers by strikes or emergencies or upon applicants with unusual eligibility circumstances, Davis said Thursday.

The budget cut, ordered by the legislature last month, eliminated 210 jobs in the department. But because of seniority rights, most of the regional office employees who are willing to move should be able to take over less experienced workers' jobs, Davis said.

The remaining 105 welfare employees will be absorbed by Wayne County, which is where they worked, Davis said.

John Dempsey, social services director, said the losses would hurt the morale of the department's 12,800 employees.

"I think the obvious consequence will be to reduce the capacity of this department to perform effectively," Dempsey said.

In a memorandum sent out Wednesday, Dempsey said "extensive discussions" with the House appropriations social service subcommittee failed to get approval for a substitute plan for five "skeleton" regional offices.

"Their feeling was that this was an extra, unnecessary layer of bureaucracy," Davis said.

"They thought it'd be better to have the 83 county directors report to Lansing directly."

The regional offices are in Escanaba, Traverse City, Alpena, Grand Rapids, Saginaw, Kalamazoo, East Lansing, Madison Heights and Detroit.

Cheating Cases Bog State Staff

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The man who heads Michigan's effort to find welfare cheaters says his staff must be doubled before he can clean up a backlog of 10,000 complaints.

Edward Donald, director of the state Social Services Department's special investigations unit, says he needs twice the 87 staff members he has now.

All the unit can do, he says, is handle the emergency complaints, those from prosecutors, legislators and the department's own welfare case workers.

Most fraud cases involve women with Aid to Dependent Children, who get jobs but continue to draw benefits, he said. "That's where your big frauds run up," he said.

Donald said last year his unit closed 8,200 investigations, which led to 1,811 referrals to prosecutors for possible fraud prosecutions. Of those, 1,000 paid money back to the state totaling $1 million, he said, while 208 were convicted.

The special investigations staff was boosted by 18 last summer with state funds provided for this fiscal year, he said. The social services department received a total 700 new staff members with the funding.

The fraud unit works with a budget of $2 million this year, he said, half from the federal government for investigating ADC fraud.

Sixty members of the investigatory staff work in Michigan's big cities, Donald said, with 31 in Wayne County alone.

The federal government has threatened to cut funds for Michigan unless the state cuts its welfare error rate and over-payments by Jan. 1.

Big Police Grant

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Police Department will receive a $2.1 million grant from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration, Detroit Police Chief Philip Tannian said Thursday. Most of the money will be used to computerize police operations, he said. The grant is contingent on the city's Common Council contributing 10 per cent of the total package, bringing the amount of the grant to $2.4 million. None of the money will be used to hire more police officers, Tannian said.

LATEST IN EROSION CONTROL: Alan Herec, newly-named conservationist for the St. Joseph and Galien River Soil Conservation districts, would be in trouble standing where he is if it were raining hard. All the water from 110 acres in front of him runs through structure he is standing in. Water rushing along the big watershed on the George Lozmack farm, Three Oaks township, was cutting deep gullies in foreground before technicians designed structure. To stop erosion "Block Toe Wall", pictured, was built. Land in front of and behind the wall was leveled out, making the slope less steep and slowing rushing water. Michigan processors paid from $120 to $130 a ton for 2-inch-up peaches, from $75 to $90 a ton for 2-inch-up Bartlett pears, from $80 to $90 a ton for Stanley plums and $100 a ton for Damsons.

Harry Foster, manager of fruit and vegetable divisions of the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association, points out that in all cases the prices were lower, although for one crop only slightly, than MACMA recommended prices. Recommended were $130 a ton for Stanleys, $122.75 a ton for Bartletts and $132.50 a ton for machine harvested peaches. According to Foster, Gerber Products paid $120 a ton for 2-inch-up peaches. Oceana Canning paid $130 a ton for 2 1/2-inch-up fruit. Both Gerber and Silver Milk Frozen Foods paid $90 a ton for fruit sized from 1 1/2 to 2 inches.

Foster pointed out that during the entire season the fresh market for peaches remained "very strong."

Bartlett pears, 2-inch-up, were bought for $90 a ton by Gerber and $75 a ton by Michigan Fruit Cannery, he says. Both businesses offered $90 a ton for 2-inch-up Clapp Favorite pears.

"Plums were graded more rigidly this year than in the past, according to Foster. He quotes the following prices paid by processors:

Musselman and Sinkley Van Camp offered 4 1/2 cents a pound, or $90 a ton. Offering 4 cents a pound, $80 a ton, were Gerber, Michigan Fruit Cannery, Oceana Canning, Honey Bear, Traverse City Canning, Elk Rapids Packing and LeMay Sorenson.

Paying 8 cents a pound, $100 a ton, for Damsons were Coloma Cooperative, Jenos, Silver Mill, Gerber and Bayview Orchards.

Pesticide Ban Could Cause Higher Prices

A proposed U.S. ban on two farm pesticides could cause a sharper rise in food prices than the wheat sales to the Soviet Union, agricultural experts interviewed by The Christian Science Monitor warn.

Plays by the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) to ban the widespread use of chlordane and heptachlor would escalate the farmers' costs of eliminating pests tenfold — and to a small degree boost prices for shoppers.

But the pesticide ban is not expected until next year and Congress may move before then to restrict the powers of the EPA in controlling pesticides.

The EPA has not determined the economic impact on chlordane and heptachlor, a pesticide used in home gardening and in agriculture — mainly on grains and corn — which in turn is used as an animal feed.

But Dr. L.S. Pope, associate dean of agriculture at Texas A&M University, calculates that use of alternative pesticides would cost $5.80 to $12 an acre, compared with the 11 to 43 cents an acre cost of treating seeds with chlordane or heptachlor.

Chlordane and heptachlor, simply applied to seeds before they are planted, would be replaced by pesticides that would have to be sprayed on in the field. These other pesticides are short-lived and must often be applied twice, says Dr. Pope, and are far less effective in pest control.

But EPA Deputy Administrator John Quarles says the danger to public health of chlordane and heptachlor outweigh the economic impact of the ban on their use. The Monitor reports.

Protests by farmers and chemical companies against EPA's ban on such chemicals as DDT, aldrin and dieldrin, and the proposed ban on heptachlor and chlordane, already have brought House action which would dilute the Federal Pesticide Act.

Funding for the pesticide program runs out Sept. 30. By next week, Congress is to consider provisions by the House Agriculture Committee to weaken EPA's authority by allowing farmers to certify themselves in using hazardous pesticides.

"The EPA is pushing American agriculture back to the 19th century," said a member of the House Agriculture Committee. Farmers complain that alternate pesticides are less effective, cost more and will accelerate food shortages.

Environmentalists, waving the same flag that Rachel Carson bore in her 1962 best-seller "Silent Spring," are moving swiftly to nip the committee's move in the bud and retain the strong pesticide law.

"Essentially very little would be achieved in controlling pesticides if farmers are allowed to regulate their use," warns EPA's Mr. Quarles.

EPA took over authority of pesticide control in 1970 from the Agriculture Department which has since represented the interests of farmers and chemical companies before EPA hearings on pesticide bans.

Agriculture and industry critics charge the EPA has not always acted with regard to the economic impact on farmers and consumers and with all available scientific evidence.

The agency's job is to come up with a system of registration of all pesticides, to be in full swing by October, 1976, as mandated by strong 1972 amendments to the 1970 pesticide law.

As more and more pesticides come under EPA scrutiny and control, farmers have begun to mobilize their frustration and irritation. Now congress is reacting to that concern.

Five Apple Processors Announce Final Offers

Five apple processors have submitted "final offers" to the Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining board in preparation for upcoming binding arbitration, according to Thomas Moore, board administrator. Negotiations could begin as soon as next week.

Since no two offers are alike, Moore said, a joint settlement committee will have to arbitrate separately each processor offer and the offer of the Michigan Processing Apple Growers.

The Growers' final offer asks per hundredweight of U.S. processing grade apples, 2 1/2-inch-up, $4.75; hard sauce and subers $3.75; McIntosh and other soft sauce apples $3.25; juice and undersized $1.75.

Final offers for the same quality fruit made by some southwestern Michigan processors follow:

Michigan Fruit Cannery — Golden Delicious, Spys and Northwest, Greening, $2.75; Jonathan $2.50; other hard apples $2.25; McIntosh and other soft varieties $2. The company offers $1.25 for Golden Delicious Spys, Jonathan and other hard varieties under 2 1/2-inch. It offers $2 for soft sauce apples and $1.50 for juice.

Jenos, Inc. — $3.50 for Spys, $2.50 for hard sauce varieties and $1.25 for juice. The company will not accept McIntosh or other soft varieties, according to its offer. It will pay $1 for undersized apples and gradeouts.

Silver Mills — $3.50 for Spys, $2.75 for hard sauce, $2 for soft sauce and $1.50 for juice.

Michigan Quality — $3 for all acceptable processing varieties without mention of size.

Food Industries of America Libby J. Harris Pies — $3.15 for Spys; $3 for hard sauce; $2.75 for soft sauce.

Tom Butler, manager of the Processing Apple Growers, reports that the association chose Robert Braden, administrative director of Michigan Farm Bureau, to represent the Growers during arbitration.

Processors will choose a representative, or each could pick its own representative, for the committee. A third member will be chosen by both parties. Moore reports that the committee must be chosen by the beginning of October, and must meet within 15 days of selection to begin negotiations.

Eight juice processors have agreed to pay $1.75 per hundredweight for association apples. They are Speas Vinegar, Fenton Brothers, A.F. Murch, Vintage Foods, M. Steffen Co., Spinks, Corners, Eau Claire Packing and Indian Summer.

According to Butler, the Growers recommend that drops be left on the ground to reduce the size of the crop and strengthen the juice market.

Arbitration is necessary because, with the exception of the eight juice apple buyers, the state's processors and the Michigan Processing Apple Growers could not agree on terms for sale of this year's crop.

Michigan is expecting a crop of about 17 million bushels, compared to last year's 15.9 million bushel crop. Partially responsible for the price deadlock is the New York crop which USDA has pegged at 25.2 million bushels, 19 per cent larger than last year.

Bicentennial Feature

Clover, Plaster Ought Never Be Divorced

Early farmers had unique, catchy sayings to describe their better farming practices designed to improve crop yields. Take hay as an example.

Many years ago, a farmer in Amherst county, Va., had this to say about one practice he followed in growing hay: "Clover and plaster, like man and wife, ought never to be divorced."

This description actually referred to the long recognized practice of liming acidic soil to improve yields of grasses and other forages.

Today, centuries later, liming is still recognized as a basic need in any good forage production program.

Bargaining Act To State Supreme Court Next Month

By NICK SMITH
Staff Writer

LANSING — Lawyers will argue the constitutionality of the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act next month in front of the Michigan Supreme court.

The court received briefs from parties to a lawsuit months ago. Recently it set aside one-half hour on Oct. 10 to hear arguments from all attorneys involved in the suit, which began its way to the state's highest court 18 months ago.

Asst. Atty. General Jon DeHorn, representing the Marketing and Bargaining board that was established under the Act and which is a defendant in the suit, says it could be a month or a year before the court makes its ruling.

To be judged is the "asparagus suit," filed in Ingham County Circuit court March 7, 1974, after the accreditation of Michigan's first bargaining agent, the Michigan Asparagus Growers.

The suit was filed by the Michigan Cannery and Freezers Association, Dukeshier Farms, Inc., Benton township, and Ferris Pierson, of Sister Lakes.

The board and the Michigan Agricultural Cooperative Marketing Association were named defendants.

Charges outlined in the 50-page suit state that the accreditation of the Asparagus Growers was improper and, of apparent interest to the Michigan Supreme Court, that the Act is not constitutional.

The Act deals only with the processing industry and provides for:

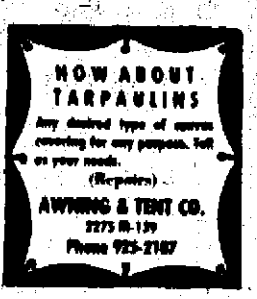

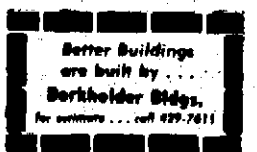

- The establishment of bargaining units, which include all growers of a set tonnage of a particular crop.
- The naming of bargaining agents to speak for all members of a particular bargaining unit during price and quality negotiations with processors.
- Binding arbitration if agent and processor cannot agree upon the price to be paid for a crop.

Turkey Production Gains

Michigan will produce 41 per cent more turkeys this year than last, but nationally production will fall off six per cent, according to the Michigan Crop Reporting service and the USDA.

Michigan flocks consist of 1,367,000 birds this year, compared to 971,000 in 1974. National turkey figures are 123,810,000 birds this year, against 131,347,000 last year.

FHA Ups Interest

The interest rate for rural housing loans obtained from Farmers Home Administration has increased, according to Robert Howland, manager of the Berrien office.

Last week the interest rate increased from 8 1/2 per cent to 9 per cent, Howland said.

OIL LID EXTENSION LIKELY

Democrats Accept Ford Deal

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress and President Ford appear ready to hold down oil prices for another 50 days while seeking an elusive agreement on long-term energy policy.

The Senate is voting today on whether to extend through Nov. 13 the oil price controls that expired Sept. 1.

That extension is part of a compromise proposed Thursday by Ford and quickly accepted by the Senate Democratic caucus. Following Senate approval, the plan now goes to the House.

Since the price controls expired Sept. 1, U.S. oil companies have not rushed to raise their prices because of the expectation that Congress and the administration would agree to extend them retroactively.

The next step is for Congress to get back to the problem it has been unable to solve since January: how to form an energy program that Ford will accept.

Ford has given no indication that he will back away from his oft-stated position that price controls should be ended to force conservation and reduce imports of foreign oil. And congressional Democrats seem as adamant as ever that controls must be retained so long as foreign oil-producing countries have the power to set prices of U.S. oil at artificially high levels.

But the two sides have agreed to talk.

Ford asked to meet the Senate House conferees, who will begin work next week on hammering out a compromise version of the differing energy bills passed by the two houses.

The first such meeting could come next week. Congressional aides said it is likely the conferees will work out most of the differences between the House and Senate bills before trying to find agreement with the Ford administration.

The Democrats point to the special New Hampshire senatorial election on Sept. 16 as evidence the voters are rejecting Ford's plan of higher energy prices.

In that election, in which energy was a big issue, Democrat John A. Durkin won in a landslide over Republican Louis C. Wyman. Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash., and Sen. Frank E. Moss, D-Utah, said Thursday that Ford is having second thoughts about his plan of higher prices because of the election.

Meanwhile, a congressional staff report reported that the sharply higher oil prices have raised the cost of producing oil and other forms of energy and that domestic production continues to drop.

The report by the energy subcommittee staff of Congress' Joint Economic Committee said the higher oil revenues have been used by oil companies to outfit each other for labor, materials and equipment.

Search Resumes

FRANKFORT, Mich. (AP) — The Coast Guard and Natural Resources Department employees resumed a search today in Lake Michigan's Platte Bay for a missing 69-year-old fisherman, Roland Hud-counterpart to his agency.

Some 100 people attended the day-long and evening sessions that were billed as a "Human Services" seminar.

Cossingham said the 10-year-old Calhoun Action agency operates on a budget of $10 million and oversees 33 community programs.

Mrs. Helen Ford, executive director of DCA, said the Berrien agency operates on a budget of $217,000 and does not oversee any programs.

Cossingham said that the community action agency should act as a "program operator, evaluator, monitor and catalyst for other social agencies. He declared that community action agencies (anti-poverty organizations) should apply for and distribute funds to other community programs that offer various services to the needy. The action agencies also refer people to services.

Cossingham claimed this procedure delivers services to people who need them and saves money by eliminating duplication of services.

"The impoverished people who actually need help are often lost in the bureaucratic shuffling of program funding and guidelines," Cossingham said.

"There is a tremendous amount of waste in our present system," he noted, pointing to Aid to Dependent Children as a "regressive system."

The community action agency can eliminate program abuse and "deadwood" by attempting to motivate people to be self-sufficient, he said.

Cossingham, a native of Vermont, also serves as a representative to the Midwest Region of the National Community Action Agency board, and chairman of the National Community Action Agency Health committee. He joined the Calhoun County Community Action agency in 1970, leaving a management position with General Foods in Battle Creek.

Prior to Cossingham's address, representatives from several service agencies in Berrien county outlined services they offer and answered questions from a citizens' panel.

Among civic and church agencies represented at the seminar was the county Social Services department, Salvation Army, Link Crisis Intervention center, Michigan Employment Securities Commission (MESCC), and the Riverwood Mental Health center.

Two Hoosiers Held In Armed Robbery

NEW BUFFALO — Two residents of LaPorte, Ind., were arrested last night by Michigan City, Ind., police in connection with the armed robbery of the Sticks Party store on LaPorte road south of New Buffalo, according to New Buffalo state police.

Arrested were Frank Knoll, 18, and a 17-year-old male juvenile. Knoll was lodged in the Berrien county jail while the juvenile was being held by Michigan City police pending extradition, state police said.

According to state police, the robbery occurred when two men entered the store at 10:30 p.m. and one of them pulled a .25-caliber automatic pistol.

Police said the clerk reported he handed over about $50 to the two.

Five minutes later, the robbers' car was spotted by Michigan police who gave chase as the car sped into Michigan City.

Police said $50 was recovered.

Charges Fly In Allegan Welfare Layoffs

ALLEGAN — The "credibility gap" between Allegan county's board of commissioners and administrators of the county's social services department appeared even wider after a press conference yesterday by the board's finance committee.

Social Services Director Harold Leep — at a press meeting of his own Sept. 12 — had charged that the four county-paid employees in his department were being laid off on orders of Finance Committee Chairman John Vogelzang, of Holland, effective Friday, Sept. 20.

Not so, said the committee's spokesman, Ralph Senese, of Otsego.

"This isn't a one-man committee," he said, "and the committee didn't fire anybody."

Senese said the decision to dismiss the four county employees on the 86-member social services staff was made by Leep himself.

Senese and other finance committee members said the committee had no authority to tell a department head — "especially someone in a state department" — to fire anyone.

They said the action resulted from Leep's request for additional funds at the Sept. 9 meeting of the full county board of commissioners.

When the request was turned down, Leep was advised by the committee to reduce his expenditures and — with the concurrence of the county social welfare board — the four staff members were notified of their dismissal on Sept. 11 the day before Leep called a press conference at which he charged the layoffs would seriously cripple his department's operations.

The four employees included the number two aides in health screening and child care; the receptionist and the coordinator of transportation in volunteer services.

According to Senese, no action by the committee could be construed as singling out these four for dismissal. "All we did was indicate that county expenditures by the department had to be cut," the decision was Mr. Leep's.

Senese said that now the fate of 12 employees at social services hired under the federal Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (CETA) is "up in the air" because of possible status as county employees.

Senese said the board has asked the state department of social services to obtain a ruling regarding the legality of using the county's CETA allocation in the department of social services.

A request for CETA funds to re-employ the four dismissed social services employees was denied by the manpower board on grounds that "all the slots have been filled."

Regarding the establishment of a revolving fund for social services — which Leep said could substantially reduce county welfare expenditures — Senese said "he never mentioned it until August, and we didn't have enough time to go into it."

Court Reverses Local Conviction

By SCOTT WILLIAMSON
Staff Writer

The Michigan Court of Appeals has reversed the conviction of a former Benton Harbor man who in 1974 was sentenced to 8 to 25 years in prison for armed robbery.

The appellate court reversed the conviction of Elbert Lee Brassell, 28, and ordered the case back to Berrien county for a new trial. However, the Berrien prosecutor's office said it will ask for a re-hearing on the case before the appeals court, and possibly appeal to the supreme court.

Brassell was convicted by a jury of robbing Alice Allen of $900 with a sawed-off shotgun Aug. 24, 1973, at the Ponderosa Tavern, 426 Territorial road, Benton Harbor. Judge Julian E. Hughes sentenced Brassell to the prison term in January, 1974, and Brassell is still in prison.

The appeals court ruled the prosecution failed to establish a proper foundation to allow admission of a statement allegedly made by Brassell. The statement was read into the record verbatim by a Benton Harbor police detective. The court ruled the detective "should have been questioned in order to determine whether or not he could testify without the aid of the (statement) after he had read it (to himself)."

Students Cannot Prescribe

LANSING (AP) — Medical students cannot write prescriptions for drugs or habit-forming controlled substances, Atty. Gen. Frank Kelley said Thursday.

Medical students can draft orders for drugs under a doctor's supervision, but a fully licensed doctor must complete the order before the prescription can be filled, Kelley said.

Kelley said a medical student does not hold a degree in medicine and "can only be regarded as taking a course of study leading to a degree as a doctor of medicine."

A prescription written by him would be an invalid order issued by an unlicensed practitioner," Kelley said.

Pharmacists who fill prescriptions written by medical students are breaking the law, Kelley added.

A medical student, he said, should not be confused with interns or residents who have graduated from medical schools and are physicians in training.

Kelley's opinion came at the request of Dr. John R. Wilson, secretary of the state Medical Practices Board.

Retailer Raps Warranty Rules

CHICAGO (AP) — A Midwest retailing executive says proposed Federal Trade Commission regulations on warranties are "completely unnecessary and very costly."

Richard Miller, vice president of Danner, Inc., which is based in Indianapolis and operates 16 discount stores and 32 variety stores in Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, testified Thursday at a public hearing on new FTC guidelines covering the content of product warranties.

SATELLITE IN ORBIT
CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — The first of six improved communications satellites to be launched during the next three years is in orbit today above the Atlantic.

An Overlap Of Laws

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — State officials say a new federal law covering the disposal of dredged or fill material overlaps state law. Gov. William Milliken sent a statement to the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers on Thursday, saying the revised federal regulations were unacceptable to the state. He said they would duplicate state regulations, cause unnecessary delay and incur unnecessary costs. Proposed regulations under the new law would require a Corps permit for any disposal of dredge or fill material. Milliken said that means citizens would have to apply for two permits unless the state dropped its own regulation.

Students Lobby For Cash

ROCHESTER, Mich. (AP) — Oakland University officials have postponed a proposed tuition hike while students go the state legislature to lobby for more money for the school. John Lawton, student body president, said Thursday he hopes students at other universities and colleges will join with those at Oakland to start a lobbying campaign to raise appropriations for all state schools. University President Donald O'Dowd said the trustees had planned to raise tuition seven per cent starting in mid-year. O'Dowd said he encouraged the proposed student effort to win more state money. "The decision was entirely theirs," he said.

Ford Motor Closing Plants

DETROIT (AP) — Ford Motor Co. says it will shut two mid-size car assembly operations for one week beginning Monday and lay off 5,225 workers. Ford, which began 1976 car output just six weeks ago, is the only U.S. automaker to curtail production this early in the model year. A company spokesman said the temporary closings are in line with previously determined production schedules for the fall. The Ford cutbacks come despite recent figures showing strong early sales of 1976 models and predictions by industry analysts of further improvements. Ford said Thursday it is shutting its Chicago car plant, idling 2,275 hourly workers, and the car line at Lorain, Ohio, laying off 2,950 workers. Lorain began new model output Aug. 11, and Chicago began 1976 production Aug. 25.

Milliken Completes Staff

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Gov. William Milliken has finished reorganizing his staff with the appointments of Patrick Babcock as special counsel and Thomas DeCair as executive assistant for state affairs. Recent personnel shifts have been aimed at better state government coordination and speeding up federal funding. Milliken said. Babcock, 34, of Hastings, will continue to be Milliken's go-between with the legislature and be responsible for interdepartmental coordination. He has been the executive assistant for legislative affairs since 1974. Babcock fills the job opened last April when George Weeks became Milliken's executive secretary. DeCair, a White House public affairs assistant since 1972, fills the position opened by Babcock's move but will handle the governor's relations with local, state and federal levels of government.

Two Juveniles Held In Kidnap-Robbery

St. Joseph township police apprehended two 16-year-old boys early today and ended a four-hour ordeal for a Caledonia, Mich. teacher allegedly kidnapped by the pair.

The boys, also from Caledonia, near Grand Rapids, were being held today by state police at the Paw Paw post charged with kidnapping, armed robbery, breaking and entering and auto theft.

Township patrolman Larry Eichelberger and reserve officer Dennis Kirksey stopped the 1974 Chevrolet Vega on I-94 at the M-139 interchange after a chase from the Niles avenue entrance ramp about 2 a.m. The car was observed in a service station, Eichelberger said, and when the pair saw police sped off onto the I-94 entrance ramp and police gave chase.

Troopers at the Paw Paw post gave this account of the pair's activities that began in Caledonia:

The two allegedly broke into a Caledonia party store prior to 11 p.m. where they reportedly took cigarettes, cigarettes, beer and $89 in cash. They then went to the home of a Caledonia high school teacher, Kenneth Gackle, 32, broke in and dragged him out. They abandoned their car near Gackle's home and took his Vega.

About 1 a.m. a cleanup man at a Hartford restaurant reported to police a break-in at a service station across the street from the restaurant. He described a car matching the description of the Vega as the one involved.

Gackle said one of the two took about $50 from him somewhere between Caledonia and Hartford and threatened him with a club. Gackle said the club was used on him several times, but his injuries did not require hospitalization.

Troopers said $125, $1

A Life Sentence

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — A man convicted of murdering a bank teller before winning a new trial on appeal now has pleaded guilty and been sentenced to life imprisonment.

Steven Michael Gay, 22, of Delton, originally drew the same life term after his conviction in the shotgun slaying of 19-year-old Connie Adams during an August 1974 holdup at the Industrial State Bank branch in Augusta.

SHORELINE GROIN: U.S. Army Corps of Engineers issued "cease and desist" order Sept. 9 to stop construction of partially-built shoreline protection device (upper right) extending into Lake Michigan, perpendicular to shoreline, before permit for construction is approved. Groin is being built for Herbert Mendel, 1600 Rocky Gap road, Benton township, who said he had told contractor not to start until permit was received. Seawall, parallel to shoreline, was constructed earlier with approval of Corps. (Adolph Hann photo)

Groin Construction Halted By U.S.

A letter read at last night's Benton township planning commission meeting from the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers said a "cease and desist" order had been issued on construction of a shoreline protection structure.

The letter from the Corps of Engineers' Detroit district office said the order was directed Sept. 9 at a partially-constructed groin being installed for Herbert Mendel, 1600 Rocky Gap road.

The letter, signed by Thomas E. Ottenbaker, chief of the general regulatory branch of the Corps, was addressed to Supervisor Martin Lane. The letter asked the township to make comment on the construction before Oct. 2.

At its Sept. 11 meeting, the planning commission passed a resolution instructing the township attorney to draft a resolution to ask the Corps of Engineers to order removal of the groin. The commission adopted the resolution last night and also ordered that a copy of the resolution be forwarded to State Sen. Charles O. Zoller (R-Benton Harbor).

Mendel, who had applied for a permit from the Corps of Engineers to construct the groin Aug. 27, told this newspaper earlier that he had told the builder, Ottawa Tank and Marine company, Zeeland, not to proceed with construction until the permit had been granted.

In other action, the commission recommended approval of a request for a used car license at 1640 Paw Paw avenue.

The request was made by Bob Bryan, of Twin City, Auction, who said he wanted the license to sell used cars he has received when buying bankrupt stock.

The planning commission approved the request with the stipulation that no more than three cars can be on the lot at any one time and only one can be displayed in the front of the auction building on the day of the auction.

Farmers Must Defuse Consumers' Anger

By NICK SMITH

Staff Writer

KALAMAZOO — Farmers, who in the past were more apt to grumble among themselves than to speak out publicly, have recently begun telling their troubles to the consumers — they have no choice.

Last night, the president of the Michigan Farm Bureau explained that government is meddling in the free market, forcing farm prices and trapping growers in a web of regulations with the implicit approval of an angry and confused class of consumers.

The farmers apparently feel that they can make life easier for themselves if they can defuse that anger by taking their side of the story to the consumers.

Newsmen from Southwestern Michigan last night following a dinner at the Kalamazoo Center threw questions at nine men who are full-time farmers and members of Michigan Farm Bureau. Present were representatives from several county organizations and Elton R. Smith, president of Michigan Farm Bureau.

The men said that consumers must be given a more complete picture of the problems which confront the nation's small numbers of food producers.

Resentment with the federal government for its decision to delay grain shipments to Russia and Poland was expressed again and again by the men, and Max Hood, president of the Van Buren County bureau, pointed out that fruit growers have special problems.

Fruit growers need pickers, hundreds of them, and in recent years the government has required strict record keeping for each picker, Hood said. How strict are the requirements? "A labor inspector told me that I could have been fined for not reporting the birthday (rather than simply the age) of every picker I hire," Hood said after the session.

Al Prillwitz, of Berrien Springs, told newsmen that pesticide regulations are reaching the point of strictness that "You can't do anything."

No argument was spared as the farmers defended rising food prices.

The product that has increased in cost the least (over the past 20 years) is criticized the most," said Prillwitz of food prices. In the past 20 years the cost of everything has jumped, "then when it came to food, they (consumers) just couldn't tolerate it."

Smith, noting that apples were once purchased in bushels but are now bought in three-pound plastic bags, said higher food bills are "the price we pay for convenience."

Art Bailey, of Schoolcraft, turned tables on those who questioned the need for higher food prices.

"Most of you get a salary, with a built-in raise," he said. "But how do we get a raise? Either we increase efficiency, which has a limit, or prices go up." For farmers, increased prices are a salary increase, Bailey concluded.

Growers complained about the low prices offered for apples this year. Hood observed that he was paid $1 a bushel in 1940. "This year, if we do get a price, it'll be less than that," he said. The Michigan price is currently being negotiated.

Other topics were mentioned during the lengthy session.

Smith said that Farm Bureau still supports the Michigan Agricultural Marketing and Bargaining Act. "We need it!"

He added that the Act needs amendment, but would not say how or why.

"It takes a man 'tolerant of the long hours and of being short on finances' to be a successful farmer," said Larry Crandall, of Battle Creek.

"It's hard for a young person to get into farming," said Bob Hilscock, president of the Calhoun county bureau. Financially speaking, "he needs some help."

"I raise a lot of sheep and everyone here's wearing synthetic clothes," Gerald Baum, St. Joseph county bureau president, wryly said.

Ouster Of Bangor School Chiefs Asked

SUPERINTENDENT, ASSISTANT TARGETS OF REPORT

HOWARD BEYER
Bangor Superintendent

BANGOR — A majority report from a citizens committee here has recommended that the Bangor school board replace the school's top two administrators.

Paul French, chairman of the 12-member committee, formed Sept. 8, said the board should ask for the resignation of Supt. Howard Beyer and replace assistant Supt. Frederick Stap with a "fully qualified business manager."

But a minority report from committee members said that to demand Beyer's resignation now would be "counter productive" to solving school district problems.

The committee report was made public in a meeting at the high school last night. About 300 people attended the three-hour session.

School district residents have been divided over whether the district needs extra operating tax revenues to finance school programs.

Voters on three separate occasions since June have defeated extra operating tax proposals.

The latest defeat, a three-mill package, was designed to raise $85,000 locally and $150,000 more in state aid to finance programs, board officials had said.

French, at last night's meeting, said other committee recommendations include one that the board not put another tax proposal on the ballot this year.

He said the committee pared the board's proposed austerity budget of $1,838,372 down to $1,786,517 and with the money can restore most programs cut by the board and keep 10 of 12 teaching positions eliminated.

Football, girls' basketball and cross country track could not be restored this year, French told the crowd.

French said another committee recommendation was that the board review its policy for hiring relatives of school employees.

Beyer's wife is employed in the system. There are others who also have relatives employed by the school district, according to the committee report.

The committee recommended that employment openings with the district be advertised locally at least 15 days before somebody is hired to fill the slot.

Beyer was reported out of town this morning and was not available for comment. He was hired as superintendent in 1957.

He is currently on a three-year contract and his present salary is $27,100.

Donald Piper, board president and himself the target of recall petitions already filed, said he had no comment to make on the committee recommendations.

The board reviewed the recommendations in a private session Tuesday night. He said the board probably will discuss the report when it meets Monday night.

The majority report was approved by an eight to three vote with one member abstaining.

Voting with the majority were Mrs. Carol Godlew and Norman Johnson, teachers at Bangor; David Johnson; Mrs. Fred Lee; Mrs. Peggy Phillips and Otto Watkins, school board members; French; and Thomas Betz.

Voting as a minority were Duane Goss, Rev. Charles McNary and David Walton.

Abstaining was Rick Blunt, who along with David Johnson, was one of two students on the committee.

Fred Lundborg, originally appointed to the committee, did not participate in committee studies.

French said committee recommendations were based on surveys of 464 homes in the district, 800 students and 65 teachers.

Stevensville Man To Lead Berrien Red Cross Chapter

By JOHN DYE
South Berrien Bureau

NILES — Berrien county's chapter of the American National Red Cross elected officers during its 58th annual meeting held here last night.

Named chairman of the volunteer organization after a dinner meeting held at the Niles Holiday Inn was David Mack of Stevensville.

Other officers elected by the chapter's board of directors were Donald Ciolli, vice-chairman, Buchanan; Mrs. Robert (Mary) Bean, secretary, Niles, and Harry Burleson, treasurer, St. Joseph.

Mack replaces Wilbert Smith of St. Joseph who was named acting chairman of the Berrien county chapter six months ago. Burleson replaces Gary Schinske. Schinske offered a letter of resignation from the post at last night's meeting citing increased business commitments.

The dinner meeting also served as an occasion to honor 22 volunteer workers with service awards. Leading the list of those honored was Mrs. Leon J. (Erma) Harris of St. Joseph who was presented a 40-year service pin by Mrs. Derald Engle of St. Joseph, volunteer chairman.

Other pins were presented for 10 and 15 years of volunteer service.

Re-elected to the chapter's board of directors were four Berrien county couples. Named to three-year terms were Mr. and Mrs. Ciolli, Buchanan; Dr. and Mrs. Donald Robach, St. Joseph; Mr. and Mrs. William Renbarger, Eau Claire; and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Eppelheimer, St. Joseph.

Featured speakers for the evening were two Cedar Rapids, Iowa, women, Mrs. Gene Carson and Miss Marie Clancy.

Mrs. Carson, a former member of the national Red Cross board of directors, called attention to a rebirth in "volunteerism" in America. She said the Red Cross is an "outstanding example of the American tradition," that Americans are willing to freely provide their services to others in need.

A former chairman of the Cedar Rapids Red Cross chapter, Miss Clancy outlined the national and international volunteer services provided by Red Cross. She said the Red Cross effort offered assurances that the people of the world can work together to attain world peace.

Merchant Abducted And Slain

DAYTON, Ohio (AP) — The body of Dayton businessman Lester C. Emoff, 67, who remained missing after his family paid a $400,000 ransom to his alleged kidnappers, was found today in a wooded area near here, the FBI said.

Emoff, who was believed abducted Tuesday night as he left one of the furniture stores he owns, had been shot in the back, agents said.

The FBI had two suspects in custody and was looking for a third in connection with the incident, said C. Edwin Enright, assistant agent in charge of the FBI for southern Ohio.

Enright declined to comment on whether $400,000 ransom paid by the victim's family had been recovered.

About three hours after Emoff was apparently abducted at 5:13 p.m. Tuesday, his son, Robert, received a ransom note.

Teacher Pay Figures Revised

HARTFORD — Gary Waterkamp, Hartford schools superintendent, said yesterday that two figures he gave as part of a new teacher salary schedule and printed by this newspaper yesterday were too high.

The figures were based on preliminary calculations.

The figures should have been $13,894 for teachers with bachelor degrees and 13 years experience, and $15,167 for teachers with master's degrees and 13 years experience.

Waterkamp also said the pay raise percentage figure should have been from five to seven per cent.

Waterkamp called to correct the figures about 1 p.m. yesterday, but the paper had already been printed.

Danger Ahead In NFL Following Rejection Of Offer

From ASSOCIATED PRESS
National Football League players, overwhelmingly rejecting management's latest contract offer, now have three options: they can return to the bargaining table, continue to play without a contract or strike for the third time in 14 months. Each of the possibilities, however, presents a danger. If they return to the bargaining table, it is reliably reported that the owners would come back with a less inviting offer than the one now before the players.
If they continue playing without a contract, there is danger of a further split among the players and clubs, with the possibility of the pension plan going broke.
And if they strike again, they will further alienate the fans who voiced their disagreement at the previous walkouts and they'll lose 1/14th of their salaries for each missed game.
Despite these obvious dangers, the players' dissatisfaction with management's offer is mounting rapidly.
Of the league's 28 teams, 16 have voted to reject the new contract, only one has voted to accept it and the other nine have either not voted or not announced their votes.
Through Thursday night, the total vote count against the offer was 470-75. Fourteen teams voted for rejection Thursday.
They included New England, 47-0; San Francisco, Washington, Oakland, Kansas City, and New Orleans, each 43-0; Chicago, 41-0; Miami, 30-5; Cleveland, 30-11; Philadelphia, 24-18; and Detroit, 27-13.
Green Bay, Atlanta and St. Louis also voted against it, but did not reveal their exact vote counts.
Previously, Buffalo and Houston each had voted 43-0 to reject the offer.
Still to be counted were Dallas, Minnesota, Los Angeles, Baltimore, Pittsburgh, Denver, San Diego and the two New York teams — the Jets and Giants. However, it was learned that Los Angeles had voted for rejection, although player representative Jack Youngblood declined to disclose the results.
Only Cincinnati voted to accept, 20-13.
The vote against the contract was not a vote to strike. That must be done in a separate ballot. So far, none of the teams has announced plans for a strike vote and all are expected to play their games this weekend.
But unhappiness with management's latest offer, a four-year proposal, continued to grow.
The players have said there are several points of disagreement in the offer. They concern pension, insurance benefits, preseason pay, establishment of an agency shop, and the so-called Rozelle Rule.
The offer reportedly was considered acceptable by the NFL Players' Association from an economic point of view.

Spartans Facing Double Trouble Wolfpack Brothers Pose Threat

EAST LANSING, Mich. (AP) — North Carolina State will throw double trouble at Michigan State when it visits Spartan Stadium Saturday for an interconference clash.
Identical twins Dave and Don Buckey have led the Wolfpack in touchdowns for the past three years, frequently on passes from quarterback Dave to spill end Don. They led North Carolina State to three straight bowl games and to a 9-2 record last year.
Dave Buckey holds the school total offense mark, and this year has completed 28 of 57 passes for 407 yards and three touchdowns. He is the key man in the Wolfpack's "veer" offense, which features lots of option plays, rollouts, passing and pitching to the running backs.
"It's a different type of football than we're used to seeing around the Midwest," said MSU coach Denny Stolz. "We'll have difficulty with it — the last time we saw it was out at UCLA."
That was last season, and the Spartans were blasted 56-14.
Don Buckey, meanwhile, leads the team with nine catches for 162 yards and a touchdown. He's caught 68 passes in his college career, and should be a strong test for the MSU secondary.
But the Wolfpack is facing the same problem as the Spartans — trying to live up to its pre-season billing. NCS was stunned by Wake Forest 30-23 in its second game, and barely nipped a good Florida team last week, 9-7, for a 2-1 mark so far this season.
Things were made tougher this week as Wolfpack practices were washed out by torrential rains in North Carolina, said coach Lou Holtz.
"We're concerned about our execution and timing now," he said. "We're going to have to execute if we're going to stay in the ball game with Michigan State."
North Carolina State's top rusher is a converted quarterback, sophomore Johnny Evans, who has gained 234 yards in 57 carries. He also averages over 43 yards a punt — an MSU weak spot this year that has kept the Spartans in poor field position.
Stolz described the Wolfpack defense as "very balanced — not big but quick." It uses speed instead of muscle, he said, aggressively stunting and pursuing the ball.
Michigan State, meanwhile, is still trying to get its once-touted offense untracked. The Spartans, now 1-1, didn't look much better against Miami of Ohio last week than against Ohio State the week before.
Filling in gaping holes caused by injuries, Levi Jackson will run at tailback again, with Jim Earley starting at fullback. Quarterback Charlie Baggett, who set a new school total offense record last week but is suffering a poor start, may begin throwing more, according to Stolz.
The defense is rearranged to replace linebacker Pat McCowry, out for the year, while both offensive tackles may be sidelined and two defensive backs are doubtful starters.
The game will be on regional television with the kickoff at 1:30 p.m.

MSU Answers Probe Oct. 13

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Michigan State officials announced Thursday they will respond to allegations of football recruiting violations on Oct. 13 in Denver.
MSU officials will appear before the National Collegiate Athletic Association Committee on Infractions to present their formal reply. Attending will be university President Clifton Wharton and the select committee he formed to conduct the MSU investigation and prepare its response.
That committee included Trustee John Bruff and faculty members J.A. Hofer, Charles Scarborough and Frederick Williams and university attorney Leland Carr.
Also attending will be Jack Breslin, executive vice president, Athletic Director Burt Smith and football coach Denny Stolz.
Wharton said the university was "fully prepared to address the charges" first made last April. The scheduled hearing has twice been postponed by the NCAA.
The NCAA and Michigan State have kept a tight lid on the allegations, although reports have pegged the charges in the area of favors for high school athletes the Spartans were trying to recruit.
If upheld, disciplinary action by the NCAA could range from a reprimand to probation to expulsion from the NCAA. The ruling could be appealed to a special NCAA board, however.

Lakers' JVs Rout Beavers

Lake Michigan Catholic combined a torrid offense with a solid defense to rout Eau Claire 82-0 Thursday in a junior varsity game at Union Field.
Kevin Wheeler and Bill Couvelis both scored two touchdowns for the winners with Wheeler rushing for 132 yards and Couvelis 83. Paul Genovese tallied one touchdown, rushed for 53 yards, accounted for a safety, recovered a fumble and was a defensive standout. Phil Banks gained 61 yards as the Lakers (2-0) registered 393 yards net offense to 11 for the Beavers (2-1).

Frazier's Boxing Ability In Doubt For Title Fight

MANILA (AP) — How much smoke is left in Smokin' Joe Frazier since the second of his two battering battles with Muhammad Ali 20 months ago?
That is the question hanging like a cloud over the third confrontation of these aging black men in The Philippine Coliseum here next Wednesday (10:45 a.m. local time, 10:45 p.m. Tuesday EDT).
Ali, the 33-year-old champion, is a 2-1 favorite. The fight is expected to be a 25,000, $1.8 million live gate sellout with promoters predicting 700 million viewers and a record $22 million take in closed circuit overseas.
Frazier, 31, wearing the scars of an 11-year career, probably will hang up his gloves, win or lose.
"He's just a shell of the man he was in 1971, should have quit after he beat Ali then," says the gloniest of his doomsday critics at ringside.
"Lost about a second of that important timing," adds another.
"Takes too many shots to the head. If a raw kid like Duane Bobick can tag him, what is Ali going to do to him?"
It is fairly easy to assess the kind of fight Ali is capable of. Since wrestling the title from George Foreman in Zaire last October he has been active with victories over Chuck Wepner, Ron Lyle and Joe Bugner in the last six months. Frazier has fought twice since January, 1974, stopping Jerry Quarry in five and Jimmy Ellis in nine.
The challenger has shown nothing in workouts to reverse the odds although pride and determination run deep.
"I have never seen a man so fired up in my life," said Eddie Futch, Frazier's trainer. "He is embarrassed at some of Ali's acts and wants to show the world how a true champion ought to act."
Futch is a grizzled little man of 64, a former sparring partner of Joe Louis, who joined Frazier as an assistant to the late Yank Durham in late 1966, succeeding as trainer when Durham died just before the second Ali fight in January, 1974.
Futch couldn't restrain a smile when told that Ali, after Thursday's workout, had predicted he might possibly knock out Frazier in the first round. "He will be fighting from anger and I might just tag him early," Ali said.
"How does Ali figure that?" scoffed Futch. "There's nothing in his track record to indicate a quick kayo. He's usually trying to save himself rather than destroy anybody."
"If he couldn't knock out Joe in 27 rounds, how is he going to do it in one?"
Kickers Playing For Championship
The St. Joe Kickers will travel to Battle Creek Sunday to take on Ann Arbor in a rematch for the Eastern Division title of the West Michigan Soccer League.
The two teams battled to a 0-0 tie in their previous title match. Game time is 12:30 p.m. at the Kellogg Community College field.
The Kickers' Junior A and B squads will take on Wyoming teams at John Ball Park in Grand Rapids on Saturday. The B team plays at 12:15 p.m. and the A team at 1:30.

Bo Seeking 100th Again Baylor Features Good Running Attack

ANN ARBOR, Mich. (AP) — Ninth-ranked Michigan tries for the second time to hand Bo Schembechler his 100th career coaching victory when the Wolverines host Baylor before an expected high school Band Day crowd of some 100,000 Saturday.
"My guess is we won't lay down and die" because of last week's 19-10 tie with Stanford, Schembechler said.
One could almost hear the bones crunching in practice when he added with a grin, "I would say we'll play with a certain amount of intensity."
The teams have never met. Both have a 1-0 record.
Michigan, ranked second before the surprising tie, beat Big Ten rival Wisconsin 23-6 in the opener.
Defending Southwest Conference champion Baylor beat Mississippi 20-10 in its opener, then tied Auburn 10-10 last week.
Although the Wolverines' young defensive backfield was embarrassed by the passing of Stanford's Mike Cordova, Baylor is still expected to concentrate on its usual running game.
And why not? Bears' tailback Cleveland Franklin has rushed for a 7-yard average with 238 yards in 34 carries, while fullback Pat McNeill, hobbled early this week by a sprained ankle, has averaged 7.7 yards a carry, rushing 26 times for 201 yards.
"Franklin and McNeill — you're talking about pretty good runners," Schembechler said. "7.0 and 7.7 — I call that decent running."
Grant Teaff of Baylor, consensus national Coach of the Year last season, says Franklin "runs like a bull with a bee in his ear."
It's uncertain who will start at quarterback for either team.
Freshman Rick Leach quarterbacked Michigan the first two games, but Schembechler has indicated he'd like to give junior Mark Elzinga a shot.
Baylor's top quarterback is Mark Jackson. He suffered a shoulder injury in the opener but could be ready against Michigan after sitting out most of the last game in favor of Charlie Parker. Both are seniors, but Parker's first varsity game was against Ole Miss.
Teaff has a 16-18-1 record in his four seasons at Baylor.
In seven seasons Schembechler's Michigan teams have a 59-7-2 mark. His Miami of Ohio teams won 40 games.
The Wolverines have not lost at home in the last 36 games.
Schembechler said fullback Rob Lyle might see some action at tailback to give Gordon Bell a breather. Scott Corbin would then be at fullback.
Tight end seems to be a continuing problem, with a number of players being tried there. Not once did Leach throw to his tight end Saturday. Wingback Jim Smith was the target of nearly all 17 of Leach's aeriels.
Schembechler said his sophomore-filled offensive line

Demise Of ABA Also Possibility Defections Merger Play?

NEW YORK (AP) — Was the announced defection of the New York Nets and Denver Nuggets from the American Basketball Association to the National Basketball Association a play to open merger negotiations or will it mean the demise of the ABA?
Those were among the perplexing questions that remained to be answered in the wake of the stunning disclosures by the two teams that they planned to jump the shaky 8-year-old ABA for the more secure 30-year-old NBA.
Sources high in both leagues said the decision by the Nets and Nuggets, considered the two best drawing cards in the ABA, to bolt the younger league and join the NBA next season was the forerunner of an attempt to renew serious merger discussions.
Admittedly, NBA Commissioner Larry O'Brien and ABA President John Y. Brown, longtime political friends, have met and discussed merger possibilities in recent months.
Brown, citing severe economic losses by nearly all of the 28 teams in both pro basketball leagues last season, said Thursday the only answer for survival was merger.
"We've done all we can do," to bring about a merger, said Brown. "It may look as if we're in an embarrassing position, but we (the ABA) would like to do anything we can to get a merger."
He explained that a merger, and the lowering of salaries that would follow when the competition between leagues for player services was eliminated, were the only salvations for pro basketball.
"The solution is to merge the league, have a common draft, or some combination," he said.
But Bill Alverson, president of the Milwaukee Bucks and chairman of the NBA Board of Governors, said: "I'll be damned if I can see it as a prelude to a merger."
"You're looking at an already weak league (the ABA) and taking two of the strongest clubs out of it. Common sense would indicate little reason for a merger with the weaker clubs."
Meanwhile, Bill Eason, board chairman of the ABA's Indiana Pacers, said, "I feel this is an attempt by the NBA to destroy the ABA."
Eason said the Pacers would apply to join the NBA only if there was "complete disintegration" of the ABA.
Taking the two best gate attractions from the ABA — the Nets with Julius Erving and the Nuggets with sensational rookies David Thompson and Marvin "The Human Eraser" Webster — obviously would go a long way toward wrecking the young league.
However, ABA Commissioner Dave DeBusschere, angry at the action of Denver and New York, said the two teams could not leave the league without "first assigning all basketball-related property (players) to the league."
If the ABA were successful in arguing that case in court — and it said it will vigorously fight the matter — the NBA obviously would not be interested in the two teams without players.

Rain Scratches East Race

Red Sox, Orioles Playing Doubleheaders

From ASSOCIATED PRESS

The two front-runners head into the home stretch of the American League East race tonight, hoping for a clear track and no rain.

Scratched by bad weather for most of this week, both the Boston Red Sox and Baltimore Orioles are scheduled for tonight's doubleheaders as they start the last weekend of the regular season.

The Orioles, rained out of a doubleheader Thursday night with Detroit, will play two games with the New York Yankees at Shea Stadium. The Red Sox, washed out of Thursday night's game with Cleveland, will host the Indians in a pair at Fenway Park.

Boston, with a 3½-game lead over Baltimore, has a magic number of four to clinch the last playoff spot in baseball. But if nothing is decided by Sunday, both teams have a list of possible makeup games for next week.

"I have a hunch the race will end by Sunday," said Alvin Dark, whose Oakland A's have clinched the American League West. "I anticipate playing Boston. I don't disrespect Baltimore. But with all those doubleheaders and games to be made up, things are going against them. It means they could be forced to use their fifth and sixth starters in some of the games — and that's a difficult situation."

Baltimore Manager Earl Weaver doesn't quite agree, although he admits the situation is a bit tenuous for the Orioles.

"It looks like Monday's game could come into focus," said Weaver, who would probably be forced to start a rookie if the Orioles have to play the Chicago White Sox in a makeup game.

The White Sox walloped the A's 8-2 and the Minnesota Twins trimmed the Kansas City Royals 5-2 in the only American League games Thursday night. In the National League, the San Diego Padres beat the San Francisco Giants 8-6.

Wilbur Wood pitched a five-hitter against a second-line squad of Oakland players, leading Chicago's victory over the West Division champions. Wood, 16-20, was backed by a 13-hit attack which included three hits by Jerry Hairston, giving the outfielder seven hits in two games.

Craig Kusick hit a home run and a single and scored twice, leading Minnesota past Kansas City. Kusick's homer, his sixth of the season, led off the fourth inning and came off Paul Splittner, 9-10.

Willie McCovey walloped his 22nd and 23rd home runs of the season and drove in three runs and Dave Winfield hit his 15th, leading San Diego over San Francisco. The victory sealed fourth place in the National League West for the Padres.

Hoople Stars In 'Pigskin Hospital'

By MAJOR AMOS B. HOOPLE

The Dr. Welby Of Football

Eager, faithful fans, you probably didn't know a new medical show called "Pigskin Hospital" will debut next week on HOOP outlets all over the nation.

According to TV Goalpost, the new series will for the first time ever tell the exciting, tense drama of how a small two-bed city hospital deals with big time football injuries.

The first show will reveal the story of Champ Choker, star left noseback for Crutches U. Quimp comes into the emergency room with an ingrown toenail but leaves with yellow fever of the back 60 days later.

Guess who's going to play the lead role? Right on, the Hoopie. Awk! Awk! I'll be starring as Dr. Mal Practice. Move aside Dr. Welby. Hurrmmmmph!

Your Major...err doctor...got his start in television 10 years ago when I played a goal post and then later erupted a bedpan in campy roles.

Besides, I probably know more about medicine than any 300 pound forecaster around.

I've had more diseases than my dog has ticks. Only last week I diagnosed an ulcer after I churned down five bowls of Mexican chili, a bottle of tequila and two quarts of chocolate ice cream. Ugh!

Speaking of sickness, on with the forecast!

(EDITOR'S NOTE: Hoopie continues to hit the target in high school contests with a .718 average (28-11) but his college average of .681 (53-24-3) needs more time.)

Bears, Tigers Remain Unbeaten

McCrone Gives Lakers Win

Maureen McCrone sunk a short jump shot with three seconds left to lift Lake Michigan Catholic to a 31-30 victory over Lakeshore in girls basketball at the Laker gym Thursday night.

In other action, St. Joseph and Benton Harbor kept their perfect records intact — the Bears dumped Buchanan 48-39 and the Tigers smashed Covert 53-6. River Valley ousted New Buffalo 73-17. Berrien Springs crushed Brandywine 68-24. Dowagiac squeaked by Niles 37-36. Marcellus topped Lawrence 48-28 and Decatur downed Paw Paw 39-26.

"There was good defense played on both sides," said Laker coach Sue Morningstar. "The rebounding really helped us a lot. We hit the boards hard."

Sherry Johnson and Carol Longmago were the top Laker rebounders with eight apiece. Sue Kunkel led Lakeshore with 16 caroms but she fouled out in the fourth quarter.

"We're more experienced but we didn't complete our defensive assignments," said Lakeshore coach Denny Kniola. "We had some floor mistakes and mental errors that you don't expect third year starters to make."

Helen McQuillan of Catholic and Lakeshore's Mandy Smith shared high scoring honors with 10 points each. McCrone and Lomonaco netted seven points each for the Lakers.

The win by Catholic avenges a 40-42 setback the Lakers received from Lakeshore earlier in the year and raises its record to 2-3. Lakeshore now stands at 3-3.

The Lancer junior varsity beat the Lakers 29-12.

St. Joe gave Buchanan a big dose of Kay Stiekney as the Bears ran their record to 5-0. The center poured in 22 points, with most of them coming from jumpers outside of 15 feet.

"Kay had a real poor first quarter so she told me she wasn't going to shoot to much more," said Bears' coach Marty Scherr. "I told her that she should keep on trying and she only missed two or three during the rest of the game."

The Bucks got to within eight points in the fourth quarter, when Becky Gray hit eight of her 16 points, but couldn't pull any closer. Patience Vanderbush added 11 for the Bucks, now 1-3.

Other scorers for St. Joe included Sue Griswold with eight and Sue Ring with six points. The junior varsity also won 62-38.

Carmella Hull gained in 26 points as the Tigers raised their record to 5-0 against the outmanned Bulldogs. Dorothy Logan added 10 points and pulled down at least 20 rebounds, reported assistant coach Connie Coon.

Benton Harbor's junior varsity squad also demolished Covert's JV's 51-4.

Dowagiac's Debbie Schonbok led the Chiefs' attack with 20 points, 12 of them coming in the third quarter. The lead changed hands several times in the fourth quarter until Terri Casey hit a free throw with two minutes left which proved to be the winning margin. Laurie Gorton had 12 points and Cheryl Huss added eight for Niles.

The Shamrocks streaked out to an 18-4 lead at the end of the first quarter and were never headed. Sue Stacey led the Berrien Springs onslaught, scoring 19 points. Janet Hile added 10, Diane Umfress had nine and Lisa Wagner eight points for the Shamrocks.

Deanna Rose and Cathy Simmons had six points each for Brandywine. Both squads now stand at 3-2 on the year.

Ruth Simmons, Wendy Schwark and Debbie Lundin all had 12 points for River Valley. Cindy Kail led New Buffalo with five points as the Bisons, now 0-2, had three starters out with injuries.

Paw Paw led at the half 15-14 but the Redskins couldn't handle a full-court press employed by Decatur in the second half. Sue Marcinck had 11 points and Rose Fuentes 10 for the Raiders. Paw Paw, now 1-4 this season, got seven points from Debbie Field who also pulled down 12 rebounds.

Vicki Perry scored 12 points in Marcellus' victory. The winners are now 5-1.

New Coach Devine Excited Over Debut In ND Stadium

SOUTH BEND, Ind. (AP) —

Dan Devine is about to get his first taste of football in Notre Dame Stadium, where season tickets are passed along from generation to generation, and anything less than a sellout crowd is unthinkable.

"I'm really pretty excited about it," said the usually soft-spoken Devine, about the home opener Saturday for the seventh-ranked Irish against undefeated Northwestern. "I've never really experienced firsthand the spirit and enthusiasm of Notre Dame Stadium before."

"I'm really looking forward to it."

Northwestern's 2-0 record, its best since 1964, and an extremely talented and enthusiastic Wildcat squad are sure to provide the fanatically loyal Irish crowd with all the ingredients for a traditional Notre Dame potboiler.

Coach John Pont's team is gaining momentum after a 31-25 upset of Purdue and a 10-3 victory over Northern Illinois. Notre Dame also has defeated Purdue 17-0 and Boston College 17-3.

"Northwestern has been very impressive in its first two wins."

"They play with a lot of enthusiasm," Devine explained. "We have been impressed with the offensive versatility of their young quarterback Randy Dean and running backs Jim Pooler and Greg Boykin."

"Boykin is a very dangerous runner. He's a threat to score anytime he gets the ball."

Devine feels that for his home debut, he'd like to see a little more discipline from the Irish offense.

"There is nothing fundamentally wrong with the offense — they're averaging nearly 300 yards a game—but we do need a little better discipline to avoid mistakes," Devine said. "So far I'm pleased that we haven't given up the ball in dangerous territory."

"Really, as young as our offense is, they're doing much better than I expected."

Devine was most pleased, however, about restoring normal practice regimen after the team's victories in two closely sandwiched road games to open the season.

"It seems like we've been on some bus, all season," Devine said wearily. "Playing two games in five days, both on the road, was a tough assignment, and I couldn't be more proud of this team for the way it handled such a demanding schedule."

Devine also especially cited the Irish defense, which has yet to allow a touchdown.

"I said before the season that we would have to depend on our defense for the first few weeks to keep us in the games until we developed some cohesion on offense," he noted. "I certainly couldn't ask much more than they've given so far."

Big Fennville Cross Country Run Saturday

Fennville will become the cross country capital of Michigan Saturday when hosting the 10th annual Fennville Open.

The Fennville Open has grown from one race with seven teams in 1961 to last year's total of 35 teams and four divisions.

Girls cross country competition on an individual basis was introduced last year and a girls team championship will be at stake this time around, including girls, more than 61 teams and 1,200 runners will be participating in the meet.

Among the area entries are Watervliet, Lake Michigan

Catholic, Berrien Springs, Hartford, Eau Claire, Decatur, Fennville, River Valley, Edwardsburg, South Haven, Buchanan, and Covert.

The 1975 race will be nationally approved for the first time and out-state entries will also attend the meet.

The Open is run on the west side of Fennville's city limits and as the song goes "over hill, over dale, through apple orchard and blueberry trails."

The meet has had many of its division champions later crowned state champs through the years, including Royal Oak Shrine and Michigan Christian.

Miami Facing Oklahoma Tonight Sooner Wishbone Awesome

SPEED CHALLENGER: Crewmen of Don Vesco, a 36-year-old El Cajon, Calif., speedster, work on the streamliner Vesco is using on Bonneville Salt Flats of western Utah in try to break motorcycle speed records. Vesco tried to break the 300 m.p.h. mark Thursday but blew an engine. He plans to try again today. (AP Wirephoto)

MIAMI (AP) — "We're not looking ahead to Nebraska this week," says Carl Selmer, maintaining a sense of humor for his University of Miami football team's game tonight against top-ranked Oklahoma.

Selmer's Hurricanes gave up 422 yards rushing to Georgia Tech's Wishbone offense last Saturday in opening their season with a 33-22 loss.

Selmer says Oklahoma runs the Wishbone better than any team in the nation. The Sooners have averaged 461 yards rushing and 523 yards in total offense in routing Oregon 82-7 and Pitt 46-10.

Halfback Joe Washington gained 166 yards and scored three touchdowns against Pitt. He had four touchdowns against Oregon State and has an average of 8.4 yards a carry.

"You can't concentrate on Washington," said Selmer. "When you play Oklahoma, you've got to respect everybody. They've got good team balance."

Washington's running mate, Elvis Poole, is averaging 4.9 yards a carry with three touchdowns. Fullback Jim Little is averaging 6.0 yards.

And there's no dropoff on the second unit, with fullback James Culbreath averaging 6.9 yards and halfbacks Dorsey Ivory 9.5 yards, Kenneth King 7.3 yards and Billy Sims 5.5 yards.

Selmer says he thinks he has spotted one weakness in the Sooners, who are unbeaten in their last 31 games, but he's not sure the Hurricanes will get a chance to exploit it.

"They haven't missed very well," said Selmer. "Of course, they don't have to punt very often."

Little has punted four times for an average of only 21 yards.

While Oklahoma will be trying to extend its unbeaten string on the road, the eight teams behind them in The Associated Press rankings will have the luxury of playing at home. It will be No. 2 Ohio State vs. North Carolina, No. 3 Southern California vs. Purdue, No. 4 Nebraska vs. Texas Christian, No. 5 Missouri vs. Wisconsin, No. 6 Texas vs. Texas Tech at night, No. 7 Notre Dame vs. Northwestern, No. 8 Texas A&M vs. Illinois, and No. 9 Michigan vs. Baylor.

UCLA, the last member of the top 10, will be at the Air Force Academy.

Among the second 10, it will be No. 11 Alabama at Vanderbilt, No. 12 Penn State at Iowa, Brigham Young at No. 13 Arizona State in a night game, Boston College at No. 14 West Virginia and No. 15 Arizona at Wyoming. Also, Auburn at No. 16 Tennessee, North Texas State at No. 17 Oklahoma State, San Jose State at No. 18 Stanford, No. 19 Florida vs. Mississippi State at Jackson, Miss., and No. 20 Maryland at Kentucky.

Bear JVs Fall 31-14

Speedy Ken Cross ran for touchdowns of 80, 16, 62 and 50 yards while leading the Kalamazoo Central jayvees to a 31-14 triumph over St. Joseph Thursday night at Dickinson Stadium.

Fullback Steve Eckert scored both St. Joe touchdowns on runs of 11 and 3 yards while collecting 121 yards in 22 carries.

Bridgman Blanks Bison Gridders

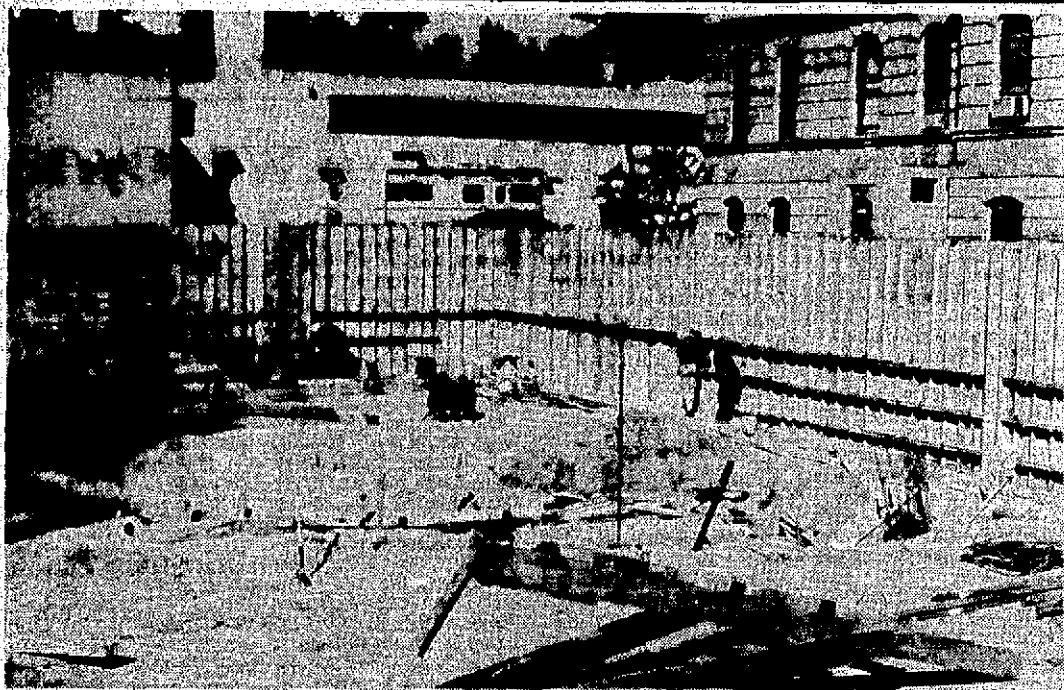

NEW BUFFALO — Bob Weed and Ron Gallo scored touchdowns Thursday as Bridgman's junior varsity football team shutout New Buffalo 12-0 here.

Weed scored on a nine-yard run, while Gallo scampered in from two yards out for the bees, now 2-1.

Bridgman rolled up 355 yards in total offense, while holding New Buffalo to just 33 yards total and one first down.

TIDBITS From Southwestern Michigan

Hilltop Road Closing

Hilltop road at the Chesapeake and Ohio railroad crossing will be closed for repairs for two or three days starting Monday. This will cut the access route used by many employees at Heath Co. and Ball division plants on Hilltop west of the repair zone. A St. Joseph public works department spokesman outlined a suggested detour for these workers. Employees coming from the north and east should use Cleveland avenue and make right turns at Hawthorne, Lake Shore drive and Hilltop. The permanent left turn ban for southbound traffic on Lake Shore drive onto Hilltop will not be lifted, the spokesman said. The repair job is expected to continue through Monday and Tuesday, and possibly Wednesday.

Legion Steak Fry

BUCHANAN — Ralph Rumbaugh post #1 of the American Legion will sponsor a steak fry Friday, Sept. 26, at the post, 403 East Kront street, from 6 to 8 p.m., according to Commander Gerald Gloden. Following the steak fry, there will be dancing. Music will be furnished by the Mystic Three. Proceeds will be used for post projects. The public may attend. Marvin Davis is general chairman.

Galien Band Plans Drive

GALIEN — Galien band members will be out ringing doorbells Saturday, Sept. 27, from 9 a.m. to noon, for the annual Band Boosters Tag Day. The school district will be covered in an effort to raise money for the band boosters. Two years ago the band purchased 75 new band uniforms with a loan of $9,275 from the school board. The band, in an effort to repay the loan in five years, has various money making projects throughout the year. Saturday's Band Tag Day is the first project for this year.

Graves Must Be Cleared

Families who want to preserve summer decorations on graves at Crystal Springs cemetery, Benton Harbor, are asked to remove them by Nov. 1, according to Carl DeVall, cemetery administrator. DeVall said families who also trim and remove unsightly shrubs from around graves, should have this work completed by Oct. 15. Decorations left after the specified dates will be removed by cemetery personnel during regular fall cleanups, DeVall said.

Seawall Permit Sought

NEW BUFFALO — A Lake Michigan shorefront property owner here is seeking a permit to construct a steel sheet piling seawall along 120 feet of her shoreline property to reduce erosion. Ann E. Pok, of Berwyn, Ill., has submitted plans to the Chicago district office of the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers for the seawall at her property about one-half mile northwest of the mouth of the Galien River on Marquette drive. Persons objecting to the proposed seawall have until Sept. 27 to file their comments in writing to the Chicago district office, according to a Corps of Engineers spokesman.

Deputy Treasurer Accused

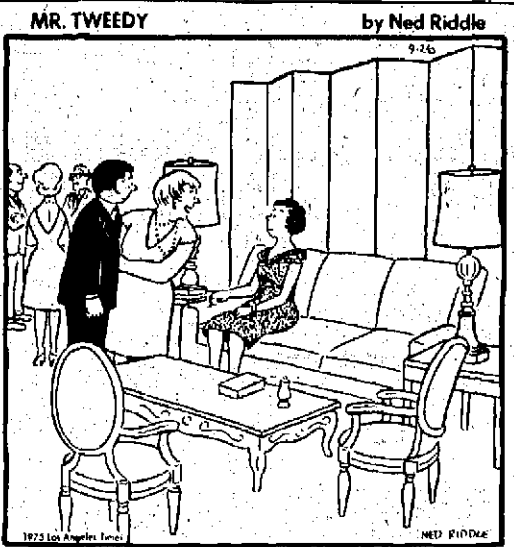

GRAND RAPIDS, Mich. (AP) — Robert Hartwell, deputy city treasurer, faced district court arraignment today on three counts of embezzling money from the city. Hartwell, 49, was charged Thursday in warrants signed by Donald Johnston, chief assistant Kent County Prosecutor. The complaints, claiming almost $9,000 was taken, were signed by City Manager Joseph Grassie. An audit found the possible irregularities and officials said a total of about $10,000 is involved. Prosecutor Harold Sawyer said the case involved three possible instances of embezzlement and one of check forgery. Hartwell was suspended after the charges were filed.

School Forum At Decatur

DECATUR — The Decatur Bicentennial committee will sponsor a forum entitled "What's Right With Our Schools" Monday, Sept. 29 at 7:30 p.m. in the Webster Memorial library. A panel consisting of representatives from the school board, the administration, the faculty, and the student body will be asked for opening statements after which the public will be free to question or comment. The moderator will be the Decatur Township Supervisor, Joseph Miller. May Kaplan, Bicentennial committee chairman, said this program is the first in a projected series. Later topics will follow the suggestions of the American Issues forum which has planned a nationwide dialogue about "our country, what it is, how it came to be this way, and where we are headed."

Two Pipelines Approved

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — The state Public Service Commission has authorized Consumers Power Co. to build two natural gas pipelines in Manistee County at a cost of $191,700. One line will run 1.2 miles in Cleon Township, and the other 1.7 miles in Bear Lake Township, the commission said. The commission found neither project was major enough to require an environmental impact statement from Consumers Power.

NEWS OF MARKETS

Market Watches Oil News

NEW YORK (AP) — The stock market showed little change today with investors waiting for a decision by oil-exporting nations on their pricing plans.

The opening Dow Jones average of 30 industrials was just a shade off its closing level Thursday, and gainers and losers ran virtually even on the New York Stock Exchange.

A meeting of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries in Vienna adjourned for a three-hour lunch break just as trading began on Wall Street.

And delegates told reporters there had been no progress toward resolving an impasse between Saudi Arabia, which says it wants no more than a small price increase, and a group said to be pushing for a much larger one.

Today's early prices included Williams Cos. up 1/4 at 33 3/4; First Charter Financial, ahead 1/4 at 11 1/4; MGIC Investment, down 1/4 at 11 1/4; and MetLife, up 1/4 at 13 1/4.

On Thursday the Dow Jones industrial average dropped 5.65 to 820.24.

Losers outpaced gainers by about a 4-3 margin on the NYSE in turnover of 12.89 million shares.

The Big Board's composite index slipped .02 to 45.44.

At the American Stock Exchange, the market value index was off .17 at 84.50.

Closing Of Plant To Idle 70

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Warner & Swasey Co., manufacturers of fire truck chassis, will close its cavernous Lansing plant for good in about two months.

The Lansing plant, the only Warner & Swasey factory in Michigan, will stop production on Dec. 8. About 70 of the 109 employees have not been offered transfers to the other 10 Warner & Swasey locations.

The Lansing branch is succumbing to a combination of poor business conditions and a crippling 1974 strike that lasted 213 days, officials said.

The 188,000-square-foot factory was built in segments dating back to 1902. Warner & Swasey, based in Chicago, bought the plant from Lansing's Duplex Truck Co. in 1955.

Warner & Swasey plans to sell the building, says vice president Clayton Hatch.

"We'll try, anyway," Hatch said. "You look at some of the buildings in town for sale — they've been on the market a long time."

Hatch himself is staying in Lansing and will be out of work with the rest.

One foreman is getting a grim instant replay of the death of his job with John Deere Corp. when it left Lansing.

A third city factory, the truck-making Diamond-Roe plant, is on the edge of closing permanently. Its 2,000 employees were thrown out of work last April when the company was declared bankrupt.

Reo's court-appointed bankruptcy trustee last week told all interested buyers they could begin dickering for the complete plant or its separate pieces.

STOCK LAWSUIT

Dowagiac Man Gets Setback In Court

By LARRY MACINTYRE
Staff Writer

DOWAGIAC — A Dowagiac man's five-year legal battle to get his money back from what was found by the state to be a fraudulent stock deal has received another setback.

The latest blow came from the state court of appeals which upheld an earlier Wayne circuit court decision against his lawsuit.

Sam Schpok, M-62 west, Dowagiac, bought in the suit to recoup $28,000 he spent for 8,000 shares of the stock from the Bank of the Commonwealth of Detroit on grounds the bank acted as an agent in the transaction.

He paid $3.50 a share for the stock in 1968 before the state found the shares to be worthless.

Schpok's attorney, Lowell Gray, Kalamazoo, said that in the appeal they contended the state uniform securities act makes agents of stock sellers, in this case the bank, liable when stocks are sold improperly.

The court of appeals ruled that the law defines "agents" as individual persons, and therefore a corporation such as the bank would not be liable. The decision was released Wednesday.

The transaction was made in 1968. The shares in a corporation called Dynatron were offered to Schpok by a salesman for a Detroit securities firm.

The transaction was made through the bank which also gave the certificates to Schpok. At the time, said Schpok, the Dynatron corporation was represented as a manufacturing firm specializing in locking devices.

Later, said Schpok, an investigation by the Michigan securities bureau which is an arm of the commerce department, revealed that the Dynatron corporation was actually a defunct mining company in Nevada with no known assets.

The investigation also revealed, said Schpok, that the salesman had not registered the stock with the securities bureau as was required by law.

The securities firm which employed the salesman was absolved of liability, said Gray, and the salesman had his license to sell stock revoked. He later left the state and could not be sued by Schpok, said Gray.

Schpok said 100 people spent over $1 million for shares in the corporation before sales were halted by the securities commission.

He said he was the only one to bring suit against the bank.

The suit was initiated in Cass county in 1970, and was later moved to Wayne county.

Schpok is the owner of Master Enterprises in Niles, a real estate

Cash, Tires Missing In Van Buren

PAW PAW — State police at Paw Paw said that over $1,500 worth of cash and tires were reported stolen in two separate break-ins yesterday.

Eight truck tires valued at a total of $1,280 were reported stolen from the Glendale Equipment company, M-43 and CR-665, sometime around 1 p.m.

The tires had been in a semi-trailer which the thieves jacked up and left standing on cement blocks, police said. A heavy wire mesh gate had been cut to gain access, and it is believed a four-wheel drive vehicle was used to haul the tires away, according to police.

Troopers also said $150 in cash and a check for $87 were reported stolen from the Douglas Magerit residence on Bangor lake sometime around 4 p.m. Entrance to the home was gained by cutting a screen window.

A neighbor told police he saw a 1964 or 1965 car, possibly a Ford, drive up to the home about 4 p.m.

Treasury Rates Up; S&Ls Are Uneasy

By JOHN CUNIFF
AP Business Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The nation's thrift institutions — the savings banks and the savings and loan associations — again are worried that they are losing out in the competitive battle for the consumer's dollar.

Restricted by federal regulation to offering only 5.25 percent on passbook savings and 7.75 percent on six-year savings certificates, the thrifts find themselves no match for Uncle Sam's 8-plus per cent.

That's what the Treasury is offering on notes, these days, and some of them are in denominations small enough to attract funds that otherwise would reside within the coffers of the thrift institutions.

The big commercial banks, say the thrifts, are in a much better position to survive, enough though the upper limit of interest rates they can offer is one-quarter point lower.

The commercial banks have other sources of income; they aren't dependent, as are the thrifts, on catching consumer savings. They derive funds and income from a broad variety of business services.

Unlike the thrifts, commercial banks aren't underlined when the money of small savers is withdrawn, attracted away by higher interest rates elsewhere. But withdrawals are devastating for the thrifts.

You might think then that the thrifts would find logical and fair the prediction by George McKinney, chief economist of Irving Trust, that federal officials soon will permit higher interest to be offered on consumer savings.

McKinney maintains that the small saver is entitled to a "reasonable" return on his savings. The present restrictions represent an "inequality, an inequity that federal officials can quickly correct if they so choose."

McKinney feels certain that this will take place, if only because "things of interest to the nation generally get done." Pressure will be brought, he said. "Maybe Congress will have to act."

Well, the thrift institutions don't think it's a very good idea. They agreed that if permitted to offer higher rates on savings they would attract more money. But at what cost?

Said Kenneth Thyngerson, economist of the U.S. League of Savings Associations: "I just don't think the S&Ls and mutual savings banks have the earnings capacity to pay substantially higher rates."

Thyngerson points out that net income after taxes fell in 1974 to $1.482 billion from $1.806 billion a year earlier. "We did a survey, a summary, and found them down even more in the first half of 1975," he said.

The thrifts therefore seem to be caught in a vice. They can't compete unless interest rates drop. And they can't correct the situation by offering higher interest rates either, even if permitted by regulators.

Meanwhile, they fear disintermediation — a big word that means, simply, a movement of money toward higher rates. In July the savings and loans accumulated $3 billion in savings; in August, only $1.2 billion.

If the trend continues, the time might not be far off — perhaps a matter of months — before withdrawals exceed deposits. But Thyngerson and many other thrift officials are betting that the situation will ease by early 1976.

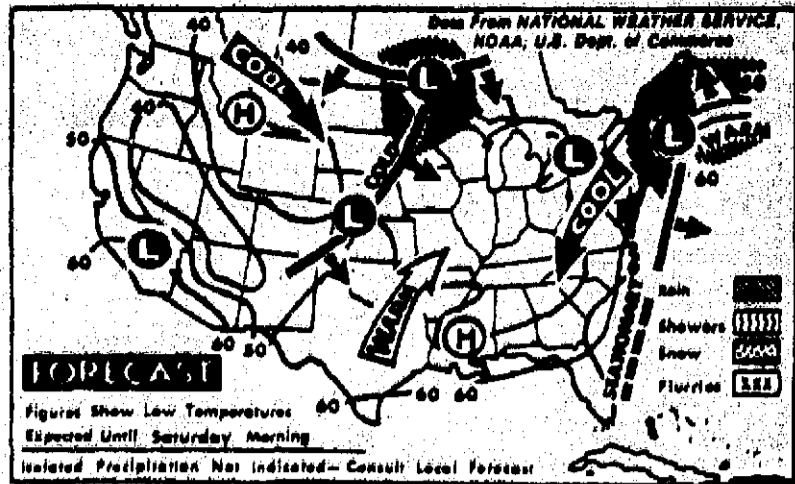

Why? Said Thyngerson: "We don't think the recovery is going to be as strong as anticipated. The demand for money will be soft. Interest rates will be lower. There may be a decline in interest rates, despite the federal deficit and Treasury financing."

Moreover, he feels that the current rise in short-term interest rates is a result of a temporary Federal Reserve Board policy, a restrictive policy that won't continue.

Therefore, said Thyngerson, "I'm anticipating we won't need all increase in the ceilings on savings interest." If there is a little bit of disintermediation, he said, it might not last long and not be as significant as some people fear.

HONEY'S UP

Electric Car Still Illegal, State Says

LANSING, Mich. (AP) — Driving the electric CitiCar on Michigan roads is still illegal, despite changes by the manufacturer made after state officials banned the car earlier this week.

"It's still off the road," said State Police Sgt. Jay Kennedy, who examined an updated model of the car Thursday and again ruled it unsafe for public highways.

They Still Missed The Plane

NEWARK, N.J. (AP) — Four teenagers, delayed by a car breakdown, phoned a bomb threat to Newark Airport to delay a Braniff Airlines flight so they could arrive to see friends off, authorities said.

Police said the teenagers, an 18-year-old male and girls aged 14, 15 and 16 were arrested Thursday, while one was allegedly on the telephone to Newark Airport.

The four were late for the scheduled 1 p.m. flight to Dallas and telephoned the threat after a request to delay the flight was turned down, police said. They said the 18-year-old girl called Braniff, saying she was "Mrs. Smith" and said there was a bomb on the plane.

A Braniff spokesman said the youths were located when the caller gave her number to an airlines worker who asked for it "in case we got disconnected." When local authorities arrived, the 18-year-old girl was still on the phone, police said.

Gerold Miller Jr., 18, of Jackson Township, and the three girls, also from Jackson, were charged with conspiracy and maliciously reporting a bomb threat, authorities said.

The minors, who were not identified, were released in the custody of their parents. Miller was held on $500 bail.

The 50 passengers on Flight 23 were evacuated while the 727 jet was searched. The plane took off at 3 p.m. Detectives said the friends aboard the plane were not involved in the hoax.

BOTH SIDES COVETED THEIR LAND

Revolutionary War Stacked Against Indians

By DENNIS MONTGOMERY
Associated Press Writer

No matter which side the Indian chose he was bound to be a loser in the American revolutionary war.

Both sides coveted his land, and both needed it for his help, then at least safety from his attack.

So it was that Lord Dartmouth urged the Indians to take up the hatchet against the colonists and Ethan Allen beseeched the same Indians to "come and help me fight the King's regular troops.

In the east, many tribes like the Stockbridge who joined the Minutemen against the British in the siege of Boston, considered themselves only tenants of the land.

But to the west, to the Alleghenies and beyond, in a long arc from Maine to Florida, the Indian considered himself landlord. To be true, many tribes had accepted King George's protection, but they nevertheless were sovereign.

King George protected them mainly from the insatiable

American lust for more land. The foremost Indian complaint was the colonial jumping of tribal claims.

The colonists both ignored and despised the line the King drew along the crest of the mountains in 1763, affirmed by Parliament in 1774, limiting western expansion. And to add insult to injury, they tried being taxed to support the redcoats who enforced the edict.

Initially the Indians tried to stay out of the fight.

Prof. Francis Jennings in a soon-to-be published book, "The Invasion of America," explains that to the Indians the new war looked like the old one, the French and Indian War. He recites the remark of a Delaware, "The English say this is all their land. Where is the Indian's land?"

The British had the edge, however — a familiar bureaucracy in the wilderness lands and an adequate supply of trade goods, including guns and bullets, on which the Indian had become dependent.

American traders enjoyed a deservedly poor reputation among their customers. In the early 1790s one observer described them as "a shame to humanity, and the disgrace of Christianity." The savages daily saw themselves cheated in weight and measure, their women debauched, and their young men corrupted.

The reason the Indians chose the Crown's side was that they didn't want all those damn settlers spilling over the line, Jennings says. No matter, the British intended to settle middle America too — on their own time.

In fact, they had already approved plans to establish a 14th colony, "Vandalia," beyond the mountains.

At any rate, the fighting that ensued was the nastiest of the war. Atrocities were no stranger to either side.

Colonial Indian fighter George Rogers Clark supposedly secured the entire northwest territory by capturing Vincennes, an Indiana outpost on the Wabash and an Indian supply base, in February 1779. That May Gen. John Sullivan, dispatched by Washington to retaliate for massacres in Pennsylvania and New York, broke the back of the Iroquois Confederation or the Six Nations in a scorched earth campaign through western New York. He leveled 40 Indian villages.

Early in the war, the Cherokees were brought to heel in the South after attacks on the frontiers of Virginia and the Carolinas.

But the Americans lacked the strength to exploit their gains and consolidate control.

In the view of Prof. John Shy of the University of Michigan, a visiting professor at the Army War College in Carlisle, Pa., ex-was signed in 1783, formally ending the war no reference was made to the aborigines. Their territory was ceded to the United States.

The Iroquois were destroyed politically, the Cherokees were beaten, the other tribes like the Shawnee just tried to stay out of the way, Shy says.

White western expansion was inevitable, no matter which side won — and no one could find a punctuation mark to end the war.

In 1786, at what is now Rome, N.Y., the Six Nations signed a separate treaty, but the fighting and land grabbing went on. In 1794, Gen. Anthony Wayne won the battle of Fallen Timbers, near what is now Toledo, Ohio. It was the last big battle, at least for a while.

When the great Seneca chief, Cornstalk, visited President Washington some years after the Revolution, he could not forget the Indian caught in the white man's mill.

"When your army entered the country of the Six Nations," Seneca said, "we called you the Town Destroyer and to this day, when that name is heard, our women look behind them and turn pale, and our children cling close to the necks of their mothers."

Our Confusing Language: try, (ie, sigh, lie and try). Librans (Sept. 23-Oct. 23) can sometimes lose time and opportunities by waiting too long to make a decision — for they are natural procrastinators. Going Back Today In History

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Friday, Sept. 26, the 26th day of 1975. There are 99 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history: On this date in 1777, British troops occupied Philadelphia in the American Revolution.

On this date: In 1808, Turkey was defeated by the Russians at the Battle of Brailoff in Russia.

In 1815, the Holy Alliance was formed by Russia, Austria and Prussia.

In 1907, New Zealand became a self-governing Dominion within the British Commonwealth.

In 1915, the U.S. Federal Trade Commission was established.

In 1918, in World War I, the Allies launched an offensive that broke the Germans' Hindenburg Line.

In 1919, President Woodrow Wilson collapsed aboard his private train after making 40 speeches on behalf of the Treaty of Versailles.

Ten years ago, former President Juan Bosch returned to the Dominican Republic from exile in Puerto Rico, and his homecoming was marred by shooting outbreaks.

Five years ago, King Hussein of Jordan named a new government to placate critics who had accused him of plotting to liquidate the Palestinian guerrillas in his country.

One year ago, it was reported that a Soviet destroyer of the type armed with guided missiles had exploded and sunk in the Black Sea.

Today's birthday: Pope Paul the Sixth is 78 years old.

Thought for today: There is no grief which time does not lessen and soften — Cicero, Roman scholar, 106-43 B.C.

Bicentennial footnote: Two hundred years ago today, the Continental Congress defeated a motion that General Washington discharge all blacks in his army.

JOHN P. ROCHE

A Word Edgewise

One of the problems with conspiracy theories is their symmetry. They are just too neat, they leave no room for the messiness that is reality. Thus the recent flurry of interest in the work of the Warren Commission has left me unimpressed. With most of the minutiae of the Commission's findings declassified, we know little more than we knew before, namely, that the Warren Commission did a sloppy job of investigating the death of President John Kennedy. Indeed, the miracle was that this body of distinguished citizens, working on a part-time basis, managed to publish any report in 10 months.

To say this is not to challenge the conclusion that Lee Harvey Oswald, operating alone, assassinated the President. It is quite possible to reach a sound conclusion on thoroughly unground bases: Copernicus, for example, reached the conclusion that the earth moved around the sun on completely inadequate astronomical grounds, and in 1946 I learned from a Los Angeles astrologer that Harry Truman was going to beat Thomas E. Dewey.

I was asked in 1964, by a leading law review, if I would evaluate the Warren Commission's "Report," and accepted. When the volume came, I read it with great care and increasing distress; my marginal comments became more and more acerbic. (Unfortunately, the book was destroyed when my office was fire-bombed in 1969 — I would like to compare some of my comments with the views expressed by the commissioners in executive session.) Finally, I reached the conclusion that the only kind of review I could write would be a demolition job and decided not to do it.

R. L. P.

This determination was not based on laziness or any desire not to upset the commissioners — I have never been an "establishment" type — but on my independently established conviction that Oswald was guilty, that there was no conspiracy, and the sooner the whole baleful episode was forgotten, the better. Scoring shots on the Warren Commission's "Report" was like shooting ducks in a barrel — but what interest would it have served? Let it peacefully gather dust.

In retrospect it seems that I missed my chance to lead a parade. By 1969 attacks on the Commission were a major growth industry; there were three, four or five Oswalds, gunsmoke by a grassy knoll (from "smokeless powder"), a shot from the front, and maybe four conspiracies with Jack Ruby as the connection. A random play, "MacBird," had President Johnson as the organizing genius. What rubbed salt in L.B.J.'s wound was the conspicuous silence of Senator Robert Kennedy, who had been Attorney General when his brother was murdered and who would personally have been hanging conspirators to Dallas lampposts if there were any. Only once, (in Germany) when he was asked directly about the conspiracy scenarios did Kennedy flatly deny their validity.

Curiously, President Johnson didn't think much of the Warren Commission's "Report." His difficulty was self-inflicted, and he knew it. He had established the Commission essentially to provide reassurance to the people in the period of transition, assuming that police work would be handled by the F.B.I. with the Attorney General breathing down its neck.

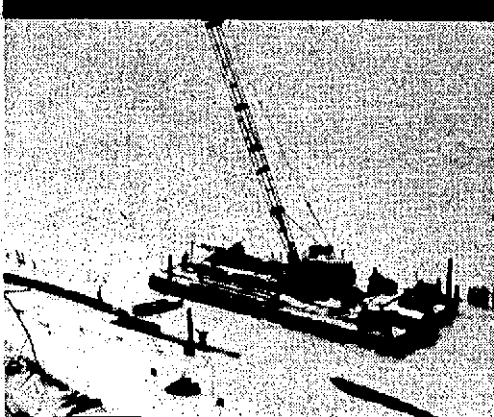

Nobody at that time (as my reaction exemplified) dreamed that the "Report" would subsequently become a source of discord — it would just be another of those blue-bound commission volumes on the shelf.

Once the conspiracy-mongers went on the circuit, the deficiencies in the "Report" became apparent. As the commissioners were busy men, it was almost entirely a staff job. When you look at the staff, you find a bunch of the brightest lawyers in town — but not one policeman.

Can you imagine a top homicide cop, or police medical examiner, investigating a murder without looking at the autopsy photographs? But what training does a lawyer have in forensic pathology? (At my suggestion, President Johnson had five distinguished forensic pathologists review the autopsy photos. In 1967 they reported to Attorney General Ramsey Clark that the Commission's conclusion had thought it inadequate to ask Mrs. Jacqueline Kennedy for access to the pictures.)

In sum, I'm bored with the whole affair. However, I'll try to be constructive by suggesting another topic for investigation: Was Theodore Roosevelt responsible for the murder of President McKinley?
